Japs About Face

PEIPING (AP) — In contrast with its recent pro-Axis attitude, the Japanese controlled press here today chorused that Germany will find ultimate victory difficult because of United States aid to Britain.

R.A.F. Fills Enemy Skies Cologne Bombed Daylight Raid Bomber Meets Fighters

LONDON (CP) — Royal Air Force launched another heavy attack on the German-held coast of northern France this evening after its daytime assaults had filled the skies with planes from breakfast to teatime.

Heavy explosions rumbled across the Channel and Dover Strait tonight from seemingly an air attack as vigorous as it was strong numerically.

Then the planes turned homeward, some skimming the waves and zooming up just in time to clear the chalk cliffs along the coast.

In the morning and afternoon raids, the planes passed one after another coming and going with the regularity of railroad trains on busy tracks.

The German industrial city of Cologne bore the brunt of a severe R.A.F. night attack.

British planes attacked an enemy supply ship off Dunkerque, leaving the vessel "enveloped in smoke" during the morning attack, an Air Ministry communiqué said.

SHOT DOWN

The attacked ship was protected by six anti-aircraft ships and E-boats, the ministry said. One of the attacking Blenheim bombers was missing, and two German Messerschmitt fighters were shot down.

(Nazi sources in Berlin admitted British planes bombed parts of western Germany.)

A communiqué today said Nazi aerial activity over the British Isles during the night generally was on a small scale. Two German planes were destroyed. One district in northeast England bore the brunt of the raiding.

(D.N.B., Nazi propaganda and news agency, claimed the English east coast port of Newcastle was damaged by German raiders and that airports near the city were bombed.)

A lone Nazi raiding plane dived on a railway station in East Anglia and machine-gunned two freight trains.

Workers crawled under the cars. No casualties were reported, although the station was riddled with bullets.

INVISIBLE

Watchers on the southeast coast said the daylight raiders bound for Nazi positions in France flew so high as to be invisible. Only the sound of their motors was heard.

Of the attacks on Cologne, the Air Ministry said "good results" were observed. One R.A.F. bomber was lost.

Last night's raid on Cologne was the second in succession. British bombers blasted that city and Essen in heavy attacks Sunday night that followed up a mighty offensive during daylight Sunday against the Nazi-held continent.

The man-on-the-street in Britain considered the heavy week-end offensive as the beginning of a fall and winter of ever-increasing bombings against the Axis.

DARKNESS HELPS

With the coming of fall and longer hours of darkness, it is believed objectives of the R.A.F. nocturnal raiders will include Berlin and other centres which, due to their distance from British bases and to the short nights, have escaped such severe poundings as those taken by Cologne, Kiel, Duesseldorf, Hamburg and other points.

The offensive sweeps of the R.A.F., ranging from northern Europe to Africa, are a far cry from a year ago when it was battling desperately to save its own bases and a hard winter was in the offing.

Nazis Rush Men From France

Canadian and Associated Press

Red Army units counter-attacking on the central sector toward Smolensk have routed a German infantry regiment rushed to the eastern front from France only 10 days ago, it was announced in Moscow today.

The beaten regiment was of the 161st German division, the Russian daily communiqué said.

Russian counter-attacks and fighting forays behind the German lines were reported to have given the Red army time to dig in for a strengthened stand from Leningrad south to the banks of the Dnieper River.

NAZI CLAIMS

In Berlin, Nazis claimed their forces gradually were closing a ring of steel around Leningrad, while at the opposite end of the front hard-hitting dive bombers ranged beyond the Dnieper battle line to strike their first blow at the Crimea.

Hitler's field headquarters claimed operations were "progressing according to plan."

For the fifth consecutive day the official Moscow communiqué declared Soviet defence positions unchanged as the Red Army stood off German onslaughts and struck back in sections along the entire front.

The midday war bulletin said Soviet naval planes sank a vessel during an attack on Axis shipping in the Baltic Sea.

BLEEDING TO DEATH

The Moscow radio broadcast a statement the German army was bleeding to death slowly from the wounds of almost 10½ weeks of assault. It said Nazi casualties had mounted to 2,500,000—with 1,000,000 of that total killed.

No specific sectors were named in Moscow war reports, but the midnight communiqué credited massive Russian tanks with literally smashing beneath their heavy tread a German light tank attack.

South of Lake Ilmen, a Berlin report said, Soviet forces showed "extraordinarily tenacious and bitter resistance," but the Germans overcame them and continued their advance.

Red navy bombers, said Moscow, raided Axis ports and troop concentrations over the last three days, damaging a warship and destroying 83 tanks and more than 50 armored cars.

HUGE LOSSES

A captured lieutenant of a German division, Ludwig Robert, was quoted by the Soviet information bureau as saying tremendous losses on the eastern front had compelled the German high command to withdraw garrisons from occupied countries—France, Belgium, Holland and others.

"The whole garrison of Toul has been sent to the Russian front," he was quoted as saying. "At the beginning of the war, regular army contingents were replaced by reservists. Now reservists, too, are being dispatched to the eastern front and replaced by wounded soldiers who, as yet, have not completed treatment. Many of them are still wearing bandages."

'Terrible Danger, Crime'

EDINBURGH (CP) — Jack Tanner, president of the Amalgamated Engineering Union, today charged that Col. J. T. C. Moore-Brabazon, Minister of Aircraft Production, had expressed hope the German and Russian armies would "exterminate each other" and leave Britain the dominating power in Europe.

Tanner made the charge before the Trades Union Congress. He did not name the occasion on which Col. Moore-Brabazon is supposed to have made the remark, but he declared such a viewpoint "may result in nullification of our whole war effort."

IN HIGH PLACES

"There are people in high places," said Tanner, "who declare they hope the Russian and German armies will exterminate

each other and, while this is taking place, we British Commonwealth nations will so develop our air force and other armed forces that if Russia and Germany destroy each other we shall have the dominating power in Europe.

Sir Walter Citrine, general secretary of the T.U.C., said he was startled by the charge and added it was "a serious allegation if it is true."

Sit on Suitor at Church

TORONTO (CP) — Police reported today that in the best traditions of old-time thriller movies a disappointed suitor attempted to abduct the bride at the church Saturday and had to be sat on by wedding attendants while the marriage ceremony was performed.

Police did not release any names but said the disappointed suitor came to the church and charged the bride with having broken an agreement he said the bride, groom and himself made during an automobile ride earlier in the day. The agreement was that the wedding would be called off.

Detective-Sergt. William Hutchinson and Plain-clothesman Sam Welsford were called to the church. They said today that no charge had been laid but the bride and groom could swear out a warrant if they wished.

LOST AT SEA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. A. Williamson received word today from relatives in England that her daughter, Lieut. Florence Williamson Macpherson, a member of the Women's Royal Navy Service, has been lost at sea when her ship, the Canadian transport ship, was sunk.

IRAN AGREEMENT

LONDON (CP) — The broad principles of an agreement to settle the situation in Iran have been reached by British and Russian ministers and the Iranian government at Teheran, authoritative quarters reported today.

Tokyo Residents in Near Panic

Canadian and Associated Press

The fact President Roosevelt made no mention of Japan and Far Eastern affairs in a militantly-phrased Labor Day address stirred conjecture in Washington today that diplomacy may yet produce a peaceful solution of problems in the Pacific.

The speech bristled with strong words aimed at the Nazis, but not once did Mr. Roosevelt speak directly of the Nipponese end of the Axis.

Some analysts of foreign affairs suggested the President might have refrained deliberately from touching on the situation in the Pacific pending the outcome of diplomatic exchanges between the Japanese and American governments.

They read significance into the fact the President spoke of Hitler and the Nazis alone when he turned appeasement.

CONFERENCES

There was a possibility, he said, that Japan's ambition to dominate the world has never been in.

Reliable foreigners, including Axis nationals, arriving at Shanghai today said Japan is in a state of dangerous ferment, with extremists being pressed by German advisers toward immediate aggressive action on the Asiatic continent and with moderate leaders making one last effort to avoid war in the Pacific.

The German advisers were said to be demanding continued Japanese defiance of United States and Britain.

The consensus in these stories of the behind-the-scenes struggle in Japan is that the Konohe government either must yield to the extremists, notably army elements, or face possibility of violent overthrow since, it is said, the supernationalists will hesitate to use force.

The recent shootings of Kichiro Hiranaka, an openly anti-world manifesto, is the most warning the world has

The informants reported Hiranaka, while home minister in the previous Konohe cabinet, began an investigation of Nazi penetration of Japanese government and industry and growing Nazi influence over the army.

NEAR-PANIC

The arrivals reported Tokyo's population in near-panic over the prospect of air raids. They said the capital was virtually without shelters and that civilians would be defenceless.

It was decided, according to these informants, that in the event of raids the people would abandon their homes, taking to the Nelson Islands instead of the Sea of Japan, as now Ministers of defence.

Some Happy, Some Sad at Back-to-school Call

The little girls seemed happy about the opening of school and the little boys mournful. That appeared to be the general rule. "Aw shucks! The holiday went too fast," said 10-year-old Leonard Sudlow, nearest the camera, who sat with his chum, Donald Smith, nine years old, while Claire Pollock, 10, top, and Geraldine Sudlow, eight, teased them.

A familiar scene at the schools today was the beginner being led to the classroom by an older brother, sister or playmate. Twelve-year-old Charles Leonard took care of his young friend, Lyle Grimes, who enrolled at Quadra Street School in the first grade. Although a trifle bewildered, young Lyle was much happier than Charlie at the prospects of school. "He's excited about starting but that'll soon wear off," said the older boy.

Many of the youngsters were so anxious at getting back to school—the majority were girls—that they arrived a half hour or more early. Waiting for the bell to ring calling them to their classrooms were these girls at Quadra Street School who stood around exchanging stories of their vacations.

the Canadian Army, arrived in Britain today.

The Good Old Summertime—And How It Flies

Determined Says Bevin

LONDON (CP)—Labor Minister Bevin told the United States in a Labor Day broadcast that at the moment there is no labor dispute in Britain "worth mentioning," and that British labor is determined "production shall not be interrupted."

Appealing for labor unity throughout the democracies to defeat Nazism and Fascism, both systems which had shown themselves to be the enemies of labor, Mr. Bevin said:

"You know in your hearts that your future also depends upon victory over Nazism. It is acknowledged that that factor depends upon overwhelming supplies of all forms of war materials. Surely, the working people will not allow any disunity in their own ranks to prevent their final victory over this monster who would destroy them!"

"Well, British labor is alive to the issues involved," he said, "and we have set about the task, together with your help, of beating Hitler on the production field. We have set aside our usual methods involving strikes and have found ways of settling our differences. We are determined production shall not be interrupted. The establishment of better industrial relations has resulted in disputes being at their lowest, and now while I am speaking to you there is not a dispute worth mentioning in Britain. Yet not only are the great trade unions intact, but they are stronger than ever."

Hon. Archer Martin Passes Away at 76

Hon. Archer Martin, retired Chief Justice of British Columbia, and dean of His Majesty's judges in Canada before he retired May 6, 1940, died in the Jubilee Hospital last night following a heart attack at his home, 1014 Verrinder Avenue.

Although in his 77th year, Mr. Martin had been in good health.

The body is resting at McCall Brothers' Funeral Home. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Surviving are two sons, D'Arcy and Carew in Victoria, and four grandchildren.

"LINK WITH THE PAST"

When Hon. Archer Martin retired as Chief Justice of the British Columbia Court of Appeal, he told a banquet in his honor: "It seems that I am looked upon as an institution—as a link with the past."

For 42 years he was a member of the British Columbia bench. He retired on his 75th birthday in accordance with his oft-expressed belief that all judges should give up their duties when they reached that age.

One of the men who played an active part in the growth of the Canadian West, Archer Martin was born in Hamilton, Ont., May 6, 1865. He was called to the bar of Manitoba in 1887 and to the bar of British Columbia in 1894.

In the growing Pacific coast province he rapidly made his mark. He was appointed a puisne judge of the Supreme Court of British Columbia when he was 33 years old—one of the youngest men ever elevated to the bench in Canada.

The following year he was made deputy judge in Admiralty for British Columbia, and three years later judge in Admiralty. As head of the latter he preserved the traditional wig that was one of the symbols of office abolished in other western Canadian courts many years previously.

Three of these wigs, last of their kind on the continent, were presented by him after his retirement to the Provincial Archives. At same time, he turned over to the archives extremely valuable court documents that helped to complete the history of the higher courts from 1853 to the present. These documents included his case books, his circuit court book he kept in traveling from centre to centre, and his State's records.

MADE CHIEF JUSTICE. Such pursuits, including the creation of the British Columbia Supreme Court in 1909 Squadron, and is not a member of the Eagle Squadron of the J. A. Macdonald Canadian volunteers.

famous grandfather, Col. Richard (Humanity) Martin, principal founder of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Mr. Martin's earliest days in British Columbia were spent on Vancouver Island, where before his appointment to the Supreme Court he acted as counsel for the Dominion government and representative of the Minister of Justice.

Subsequently his duties took him to nearly every part of the province. He was acquainted intimately with the mining and ranching of the Cariboo district and in 1900 acted as a special commissioner to settle mining disputes in the Porcupine district of the province, arising out of the British-United States treaty on the Canadian-Alaskan boundary.

When he retired as Chief Justice of the Court of Appeal last year he promised friends to write a book of reminiscences dealing with early days in the province. He previously had written several books, most of them dealing with legal matters, including "The Hudson's Bay Company's Land Tenures," "Chart of the Judges of Vancouver Island and British Columbia," and "Martin's Mining and Water Cases." He also published "The Genealogy of Martin of Ballinahinch Castle."

42 YEARS ON BENCH

In 42 years on the British Columbia bench he never missed a day from court with the exception of one week when he was confined to his home with a sprained ankle. His perpetual good health enabled him to enjoy swimming, golf and tennis and to take an active interest in gardening.

On his retirement, W. E. Burns, K.C., treasurer of the Law Society of British Columbia, addressed him as follows:

"Your long, useful and indefatigable labors in your sphere of endeavor have wrought greatly in directing and in building up the jurisprudence of the province, and on behalf of the bar of the province I desire to bear you acclaim, to thank you and to honor you for your contributions."

"You have seen fit to lay down your official tools while yet you are young in spirit and at a time when your vigor is still with you, and it is our hope that, in being relieved from the arduous daily tasks, you may be spared, for many years to come, to follow in such congenial pursuits as may have their appeal."

Such pursuits, including the creation of the British Columbia Supreme Court in 1909 Squadron, and is not a member of the Eagle Squadron of the J. A. Macdonald Canadian volunteers.

Archer Martin was named in March, 1940, a gunnery officer. Fifty-one airmen in the group were awarded Distinguished Flying Crosses, Distinguished Service Orders and Distinguished Flying Medals.

5th Column Charges in Eire

DUBLIN (CP)—Prime Minister De Valera's party newspaper, the Irish Press, today accused the Irish Independent, Dublin's largest newspaper, of fifth column tactics.

The Press, organ of the government party, Fianna Fail, assailed as sinister the following passage from an editorial in the Independent:

"Anybody in touch with public feeling in this country must be disturbed by the cynicism, not unminged with despair, which is so common at the moment."

"There is a danger that, having lost faith in those charged with management of the country's af-

Rheumatic PAIN

For five years Mrs. Wm. Cheekley, 171 Mount St., Toronto, had suffered repeated attacks of rheumatic pain and stiffness in her right shoulder, without finding anything to bring relief. Then, one day, her hairdresser said, "Why don't you take Templeton's T-R-C's?" Mrs. Cheekley acted on the advice—and she discovered what so many Canadians suffer from rheumatic pain have found—that there is nothing like T-R-C's for fast easing of pain and limbering up of stiff joints. fairs, the people may begin to lose faith in themselves."

The Press said of this: "In any country in the world it would be regarded as the most contemptible of all patriotic acts to undermine the authority of those who are endeavoring to bring this country safely through the most dangerous emergency in its history, but the Irish Independent is not only attempting this but also trying to shake people's faith in themselves. It's ambition seems to be to become the organ of a native fifth column."

Roosevelt Pledges Full U.S. Power To Defeat of Hitler, Hints Convoys

HYDE PARK (AP)—Following is the text of President Roosevelt's Labor Day address:

On this day—this American holiday—we celebrate the rights of free laboring men and women.

The preservation of these rights is now vitally important not only to us who enjoy them—to the whole future of Christian civilization.

American labor now bears a tremendous responsibility in the winning of this most brutal, most terrible of all wars.

In our factories and shops and arsenals we are building weapons on a scale great in its magnitude. To all the battlefronts of the world these weapons are being dispatched, by day and by night, over the seas and through the air. And this nation is now devising and developing new weapons of unprecedented power toward the maintenance of democracy.

Why are we doing this? Why are we determined to devote our entire industrial effort to the prosecution of a war which has not yet actually touched our own shores?

No! Interested In Glory, Territory

We are not a warlike people. We have never sought glory as a nation of warriors. We are not interested in aggression. We are not interested—as the dictators are—in looting. We do not covet one square inch of the territory of any other nation.

Our vast effort, and the unity of purpose which inspires that effort, are due solely to our recognition of the fact that our fundamental rights—including the rights of labor—are threatened by Hitler's violent attempt to rule the world.

These enemies know that our army is increasing daily in its all-round strength.

Industry, Labor Chief U.S. Fighters

These enemies know that today the chief American fighters in the battle now raging are those engaged in American industry, employers and employees alike.

These enemies know that the course of American production in the past year has shown enormous gains and that the product of these industries is moving to the battlefronts against Hitlerism in increasing volume each day.

But these enemies also know that our American effort is not yet enough—and that unless we step up the total of our production and more greatly safeguard it on its journeys to the battlefronts, these enemies will take heart in pushing their attack in old fields and new.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT: "We shall do everything in our power to crush Hitler and his Nazi forces."

Time to Strike With Greater Effort

I give solemn warning to those who think that Hitler has been blocked and halted, that they are making a very dangerous assumption. When in any war your enemy seems to be making slower progress than he did the year before, that is the very moment to strike with redoubled force—to throw more energy into the job of defeating him—to end for all time the menace of world conquest and thereby end all talk or thought of any peace founded on a compromise with evil itself.

And we know that a free labor system is the very foundation of a functioning democracy. We know that one of the first acts of the Axis dictatorships has been to wipe out all the principles and standards which labor has been able to establish for its own preservation and advancement.

Labor Knows Hitler Methods

Hitler has not worked that way. He will not—he cannot—work that way. Just as he denies all rights to individuals, he must deny all rights to groups—of labor, of business, of learning, of the church. He has abolished trade unions as ruthlessly as he has persecuted religion.

No group of Americans has realized more clearly what Nazi domination of the world means than has organized labor—what it means to their standards of living, their freedom, their lives.

No group has a greater stake in the defeat of Nazism, in the preservation of the fundamental freedoms, in the continuance of democracy throughout the world. We have already achieved much; it is imperative that we achieve infinitely more.

The single-mindedness and sacrifice with which we jointly dedicate ourselves to the production of the weapons of freedom will determine in no small part the length of the ordeal through which humanity must pass.

We cannot hesitate, we cannot equivocate in the great task before us. The defence of America's freedom must take precedence over every private aim and over every private interest. We are engaged on a grim and perilous task. Forces of insane violence have been let loose by Hitler upon this earth. We must do our full part in conquering them. For these forces may be unleashed on this nation as we go about our business of protecting the proper interests of our country.

No Negotiation, Will Crush Hitler

The task of defeating Hitler may be long and arduous. There are a few appeasers and Nazi sympathizers who say it cannot be done. They even ask me to negotiate with Hitler—to pray for crumbs from his victorious table. They do, in fact, ask me to become the modern Benedict Arnold and betray all I hold dear—to my devotion to our freedom—to our churches—to our country. This course I have rejected—I reject it again.

Instead, I know that I speak the conscience and determination of the American people when I say that we shall do everything in our power to crush Hitler and his Nazi forces.

American workers and American churchmen—all of us together—have the great responsibility and the great privilege of labor to build a democratic world on enduring foundations.

May it be said on some future day by some future President of the United States that we did our work faithfully and well.

'Bloodiest Losses' Now

7,000,000 Casualties In 2 Years of War

By CARL C. CRANMER

NEW YORK (AP)—At the end of the second year of the war that began September 1, 1939, casualties in killed, wounded and captured must be close to 7,000,000.

It is in the Russian theatre that the bloodiest losses of the war are taking place.

But losses in killed, wounded and missing in this war, while probably close to 7,000,000, are far short of the 37,000,000 for all nations in the four years of the first Great War.

German claims of having captured 1,250,000 Russians and inflicted 3,750,000 casualties, and Russian estimates of 2,000,000 German dead and wounded may be safely written down as exaggerations, in the opinion of nearly all observers.

Neither Russians nor Germans have estimated that more than 9,000,000 men were engaged on the entire front. The capture, killing and wounding of 7,000,000 leave but 2,000,000 men to continue the war.

MOUNTING

Russia may not have been straying too far from the truth when on August 8 she admitted total casualties of 600,000. Her casualties therefore may be mounting close to 1,000,000 by now.

If Germany has lost 500,000 men she has lost heavily—probably about one man in six. With her officially admitted losses in all fighting prior to the Russian invasion, her own casualties may be totaled up as follows, with the proviso that the necessary information for accurate estimates is lacking and that even official figures in some cases are open to question.

'For Bravery'

Canada Airmen Win High Honors

LONDON (CP)—Five Canadian airmen have been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for daring daylight attacks against German warships sheltering in French harbors.

They are: P.O. J. A. Duncan, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.; P.O. J. P. Ery, Toronto; P.O. R. H. Sutton, Winnipeg; Acting Squadron Leader W. B. Keddy, Burnside, N.S.; and Squadron Leader L. J. Stickley, Lethbridge, Alta.

Duncan, Ery and Sutton are members of the Royal Canadian Air Force but attached to Royal Air Force squadrons. They were trained in Canada under the Commonwealth air training plan. Keddy is a member of No. 405 Squadron of the R.C.A.F. and Stickley is attached to No. 40 Squadron of the R.A.F.

Since an attack Monday, Ery, who had been acting as an observer, has been listed as missing.

HIT WARSHIPS

The citation said the Canadians participated in large-scale attacks on German warships, including the battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst and the heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen at Brest. A smaller attack also was made by them on Cherbourg.

The citation continued: "Operations were carried out in daylight. Extremely heavy and accurate anti-aircraft fire and fighter opposition were encountered by all aircraft when approaching the target which, at Brest, was protected by a balloon barrage.

"All air crews engaged succeeded, nevertheless, in securing direct hits on objectives, inflicting very severe damage in the target area. During the combats with enemy fighters, 21 hostile aircraft were destroyed and several others severely damaged.

SKILL, COURAGE

"The precise timing of the attack by various formations of aircraft and their approach to and their accurate bombing of the objective in the face of such powerful opposition, demanded great skill and high courage.

"The great success of these operations was largely due to the bravery, determination and resource displayed by officers and airmen who participated in various capacities as leaders and members of aircraft crews."

A D.F.C. also was awarded to Edward Alexander Morrison, a United States citizen, following his participation in the attacks on the German battleships.

Morrison is a member of the 99th Squadron, and is not a member of the Eagle Squadron of American volunteers.

Morrison, who was commissioned in March, 1940, is a gunner.

Fifty-one airmen in the group were awarded Distinguished Flying Crosses, Distinguished Service Orders and Distinguished Flying Medals.

Men's Clothes
Trade to Boom

NEW YORK (AP)—The men who set styles for the north American male reached the end of the limb today and predicted flatly this autumn would see the greatest boom in men's wear in a decade—despite an assured 10 to 15 per cent increase in retail prices.

These were not Fifth Avenue tailors coaxing the carriage trade to buy now and pay any old time, but style setters well acquainted with the two-suit closet.

The tweed suit that sold last September for $32.50 was stepped up to $35.50. The $24.50 suit was the one they used to buy for $22.50. In the classy Fifth Avenue shops the story was the same.

But all appeared confident the increased flow of money caused by the defence boom would cover the higher prices nicely and that buyers would be plentiful. They said the price rise was due to shortage of labor.

Eight out of 10 stylists saw a definite swing back to conservatism, with splashing color confined to underwear.

Tweeds are in lighter shades, oatmeal the leader. Corduroy jackets are extremely popular with younger men, running as long as 31 inches. Forty per cent of the nation's men will wear double-breasted suits. With the silk supply curtailed, the wool tie is becoming the all-American tie.

Topcoats are the box type, loose fitting to the extreme, definitely casual. Midnight blue evening clothes are practically a "must," tailors reporting they lead the regulation black 4 to 1. Shoes will be military with plain toe.

Fur Prices Are Rising! But you still have time to buy your fur coat at Foster's low August Sale prices!

Premier Says

'His Majesty
Thanked Canada'

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King returned to London to attend a meeting of the war cabinet after "two days of entire relaxation" in the country with the King and Queen.

"I found Their Majesties looking particularly well, having regard to the strain they are under," the Prime Minister reported. "We had long talks about Canada. Their Royal tour is still fresh in their memory."

Describing the week-end as "just a family affair," Mr. King said it included a picnic with the Royal family and a church service, conducted by a distinguished clergyman and attended by many officers and men of the Canadian Forestry Corps.

"I had a long talk with the King alone about world affairs, the progress of the war and the part played by the Dominions. The King is deeply conscious of the important part being played by Canada, and expressed warm thanks."

WORLD POSITION
DESPERATE—PAISH

VANCOUVER (CP)—The resistance the Russians have put up to the Germans is no surprise to Sir George Paish, the noted British economist who flew here from Montreal and told interviewers.

"The Russians have tasted German domination and are determined to die rather than have more of it," he said. "They will not return to serfdom."

Sir George will address a meeting here tonight.

"Let me tell you," he said, "that if Hitler succeeds in his plan of world domination then half the population of the world will starve. This is the most desperate position the world has ever been in."

NEW BOSS of Australia is A. W. Padden, who succeeds R. G. Menzies as Prime Minister.

IN A NEW CABINET post is Mr. Menzies. He is now Minister for co-ordination of defence.

Taylor in England

LONDON (CP)—E. P. Taylor of the Canadian Munitions Department has arrived in Britain to confer with the Ministry of Supply. It was announced today. He has been here a couple of days.

Nazis Have Lost

'War Over, Hitler Soon Dead,' Says Edmonton Prophet

EDMONTON (CP)—Harry Snider, Edmonton's amateur prophet of world events, declared in an interview over the week-end the war would end Sunday night, and "any fighting from then on will be mere cleaning up."

Stating he still stands by one of his published forecasts that Hitler "and three other dictators" will have met violent deaths within a week after August 31, the 60-year-old Russian-born former livestock buyer said, "What I said will come true."

"Mind you, there may be fighting going on after August 31, but Hitler and you and I will know by Sunday night, yes, the whole world will know—that the Germans have lost the war and any fighting from then on will be mere cleaning up."

Mr. Snider is credited by many with having successfully foretold such events as the abdication of Edward VIII, the Dunkerque evacuation and the flight of Rudolf Hess to Britain.

6 Killed in B.C.
On Long Week-end

Six persons met violent death in British Columbia during the Labor Day week-end. Five were killed in traffic accidents, while the sixth, an unidentified soldier, was drowned when he fell from a railway bridge across the Fraser River at New Westminster.

Those killed in traffic accidents were: Paul Soukoroff and Nick Pervezoff, both of Pass Creek, killed Sunday when their truck left the Nelson-Nelway highway Sunday.

Francis B. Stock, Surrey, killed Sunday when his light truck was struck by an electric interurban train in Burnaby, B.C.

Mrs. Alex Distan, 58, North Vancouver, fatally injured late Saturday when struck by a truck whose driver failed to stop. Two men were held for investigation.

Neil McPhail, 20, Sumas, B.C., killed Saturday when his motor cycle collided with an interurban train near Abbotsford.

SOLDIER KILLED

Police at New Westminster said last night they had been unsuccessful in efforts to recover the body of the unidentified soldier from the Fraser River.

The soldier was seen on the approach to the railway bridge by a guard early Sunday morning and warned by the guard that a train was approaching from the opposite side of the river.

When he continued on to the bridge, the guard seized him and held him on a platform until the train passed. When he released his hold the soldier toppled from the bridge into the water.

Roosevelt Speech

LONDON (CP)—The press prominently displayed today President Roosevelt's Labor Day pledge that the people of the United States would do everything in their power to crush Hitler. Editorials termed the talk the President's most direct challenge to the Nazis.

Into the Third Year

LITTLE THAT IS NOT INDELIBLY IMPRINTED on the minds of Canadians can be added to the moving narrative of the first two years of the second World War. All too familiar is the appalling story of nation after nation falling—in conflict or by collusion in one form or another—before the tyrant's might and intrigue. How many of them could have saved their political fortunes, how many frontiers might have remained inviolate, if governments had heeded warnings of repeated, is merely speculative thought in which it is neither edifying nor fruitful to indulge. And while what has caused us much agony of soul and spirit in the days behind us constitutes the war in this gargantuan tapestry of tragic events, there are lights on the horizon by which we can see the way as it is more clearly defined.

A year ago Britain stood alone, staggering under the collapse of her ally; the epic of Dunkerque belonged to history. Then in the words of Winston Churchill: "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few"—an immortal phrase that will live long after its author has completed his work. But a proud Nazi boast had not been made good—then or since; totalitarianism had met its first real rebuff. Greece startled the little tin Caesar; dauntless mountain fighters pricked the Fascist bubble. Marshal Rodolfo Graziani had established a foothold in Egypt in readiness to snatch Mussolini's much-vaunted victory "from the Alps to the Pyramids"; then Wavell struck with all his meagre force. Again the Nazi machine began to move; Jugoslavia "found her soul" and seriously upset the Axis timetable. The Balkans were subjugated in their entirety; yet was it not Bismarck who had said that they were not worth "the bones of a Pomeranian fusilier"? With the assembly of help from Germany the greater part of Italian Libya returned to enemy hands; British and Imperial troops tore Mussolini's vast East African Empire to "shreds and tatters." Iraq, Syria, and finally Iran, responded to the familiar Nazi technique; all are now under Allied control. Last June 22 came a new test for the German juggernaut; 10 weeks after Russia's volte face Hitler is sorely harassed on the eastern half of his dread two-front war. So serious did the dislocation of the tyrant's schedule appear last week that the two architects of the New World Order communed with one another for more than five days; they faced not only the beginning of the third year of the war but also the crucial winter of their especial discontent. So stands the battle today as General Saboteur proceeds with his continental recruiting campaign—as Britain and her Allies find new strength.

All these circumstances notwithstanding, if ever there was a time for maximum vigilance, for greater effort on the part of the fighting Allies and their officially-nonbelligerent friends, that time is now. In the next few weeks or months Adolf Hitler will be assigned to the role of a baffled and mortally-wounded animal; but he will have time to crouch and ponder the technique for his death spring. Nothing will be too diabolical for him to try in his extremity; he will watch for the slightest sign of complacency on the part of those growing agencies that are plotting his downfall, that are vowing the destruction of the odious philosophy for which he and his system stand. Survival and victory, then, in this third year of war, can be bought only by sacrifice the like of which none of us has ever known before.

Wants More Production

MR. ROOSEVELT'S LABOR DAY MESSAGE was a good deal more than an appeal to the working people of the United States to close ranks. It was an emphatic reaffirmation of American democracy's article of faith. The men of Berlin found nothing in it to cheer them on their way into the third year of a war now raging on two fronts. The intimation that our neighbor is pledged to do "everything in our power to crush Hitler and his Nazi forces" was not especially new; the President has so spoken on former occasions. But when he underscored it by saying "this nation is now devising and developing new weapons of unprecedented power toward the maintenance of democracy," and emphasized the need to "step up the total of our production and more greatly safeguard it in its journeys to the battlefields," Mr. Roosevelt left little to the imagination.

But the President's references to Hitler and the philosophy he represents, if anything, were much more direct and emphatic than hitherto. And if safeguarding material on its journeys to the battlefields in which Britain and her Allies are fighting means anything at all, it suggests that the sea and air lanes may soon be dotted by ships and planes flying the insignia of Uncle Sam. It was not surprising, however, that Mr. Roosevelt did not mention Japan by name; the men of Tokyo were at liberty to read into his pointed generalization what they liked. Negotiations for the settlement of differences between the two countries are presumably proceeding—hence the omission. It now remains to be seen what the war lords will do. United States tankers now approaching Japan's waters on their way to Russia's

Internal Security

TO PERSUADE MORE THAN 20,000 REPUBLICAN and busy citizens to do an unspectacular job when there is no apparent visible reason for doing it is a task which requires imagination, vision and the capacity for convincing argument. This is nevertheless the undertaking to which Hon. Gordon Wismer, British Columbia's Attorney-General, applied himself a few weeks ago as he interpreted the unfolding events in the Far East in their relationship to the safety and security of our Canadian Pacific province. Twelve months have elapsed since he launched his plan for the important contribution to national defence which might at any time be required—perhaps without much warning—for our own protection and as an integral part of provincial action in the face of unheralded emergency.

Now fully organized in this province, therefore, are more than 30 units of internal security volunteers who know what to do, when to do it and how to do it—an A.R.P. force engendered by the enthusiasm aroused by Mr. Wismer through the medium of more than 40 organizational meetings he addressed during his visit to all the strategic areas. With a direct bearing on this practical plan, incidentally, are words of thanks and encouragement—albeit a pointed warning to all our people—which the Attorney-General received two months ago from Major-General R. O. Alexander, G.O.C.-in-C. Pacific Command, and this part of it is worth quoting:

"On this occasion when you are visiting different parts of British Columbia and investigating the question of civilian defence, may I take this opportunity of voicing my appreciation of your co-operation and assistance. . . . Air Raid Precautions and kindred subjects may appear very unnecessary to a great many people here in this beautiful and peaceful province; but unfortunately nothing is impossible today and I feel it is the duty of all of us to prepare ourselves for any possible or potential danger which may confront us, regardless of how fantastic or improbable it may seem. . . . There are many possible developments in the international situation and in the progress of the war which might very closely affect us, and anything you can do to bring it home to our fellow citizens is, I feel, very much worth while."

The foregoing speaks for itself. But the organization the Attorney-General has built up is far from a single-track method of collaboration in the nation's general war effort; the scope of the service which this fine force of 20,000 citizens are ready and willing to render envisages valuable demonstrations of citizenship by force of example in such matters as gasoline conservation, the need to curtail spending on nonessentials as a means of averting inflation, in the purchase of War Savings Certificates, and so on. Such contributions to the common cause may be far from spectacular; they are the labors of patriots—unsung and unhonored—who are impatient of platitudinous generalities. It is a highly-valuable collaborative work which Mr. Wismer has accomplished quietly and thoroughly in the last 12 months.

Education More Vital Now

MANY A CANADIAN BOY IS PROBABLY hesitating about the wisdom of going back to school or college. He may be asking what is the use if, after he has just settled down to the labors of the new term, he is to be called for military service; he may try to persuade himself that it will be a waste of time and effort. It is natural enough for a young man to be thinking in such terms in the perplexing days through which he is passing. But there is a sound piece of advice for him to ponder: "Get all the education you can while you can." If the course shall be interrupted, if Canada's war effort decrees that the need for additional men is more urgent than ever, school and college training will help the prospective soldier through his military service—and may definitely lead to promotion and pay within that service.

Generally speaking, the educated man adapts himself to changed conditions more easily, understands more fully the necessity for training; hence he finds his job less irksome. In today's modern, complex, highly-organized army, there is a use for any kind of training he may get. There are naturally exceptions, and one can always find instances where the army has made a Phi Beta Kappa specialize in tasks of which he had no conception, but which, by the same token, may give him an entirely new outlook on life. And, in its broadest sense, any kind of educational training is directly useful in the army, aside from its general value. The world after the emergency has passed, furthermore, is going to be an even more highly-competitive world than before. Jobs may be scarce, and the better prepared a man is, the more chance he will have to obtain one. In other words, any boy hesitating about such educational problems would do well to think of those things. In high school or college, for six months, or four years, the young man who studies, prepares himself for better and more effective service, adds to the stock of training and education of the nation; for he, too, is serving his country until the time when more exacting service is required.

IN HITLER'S WAY

Before becoming unduly depressed about the way the war is going, take a look at four real reasons why Hitler won't win. They are offered in the current American Magazine by Harry Hopkins, right-hand man to President Roosevelt. These are the four essential facts against the Fuehrer: He has not got real sea power; he is slowly losing air superiority; he cannot equal the economic resources the British and Americans are bringing to bear against him; finally, it is contrary to every American interest—economic, political, and moral—that he should be allowed to consolidate his ill-gotten gains.

Bruce Hutchison

TIMELESS
THE OTHER DAY, for the first time in many months, I was in our Parliament Buildings. What a wonderful sensation it is! I mean, to find that in this swirling, chaotic world something stays always the same. Over James Bay nothing has changed—few faces maybe, an increase in the budget, but nothing important, nothing basic.

The way of life in B.C. politics is as changeless as the sea and the mountains, something to tie to in a storm, something to come back to out of a mad world and feel like a child returning to his home out of the black night. And it is never so much as in an election campaign. Then it acts timelessly, by sure instinct, like the birds nesting, like the salmon spawning, like the leaves falling, like the winter snow.

Now throughout the country the politicians move quietly in pre-election arrangements, in quiet deals, in solemn conversation behind the closed doors of bedrooms in country hotels. Now the party leaders discover a burning interest in citizens whom they never saw before but who might carry a constituency. Now the finger of destiny touches the shoulder of obscure fellows in town and hamlet and great city and, instead of being a mere citizen, the candidate becomes overnight a name and a figure and his whole life is changed and usually ruined.

Now is the season when good husbands and kind fathers see the glare of a blinding light and, rushing towards it like the moth to the flame, plunge headlong into politics and forever afterwards neglect their families, their business and their fortunes.

REFUGE

AH, THERE IS COMFORT to return to James Bay, even for a fleeting glance! Here is the only sure refuge I know. It is better even than the woods. The woods, after all, have to be silent and undisturbed. You expect them to remain just as they were. You do not expect the trees to march off to war or the grouse to change their habits. But here, in provincial politics, where you might expect the contagion of our sick civilization to penetrate, you find an absolute immunity and a strength which defies all the movements and evils of our time. On and on forever, unchanging and immortal, goes the march of provincial politics, making you suddenly more confident of the future. Here indeed is the only thing you can count on and cling to in the universe. Nay, though the very stars fall, I shall not be alarmed. I shall walk across the Causeway when the Legislature is meeting and I shall know that nothing will be changed.

DEFAULT

BUT TO TELL THE TRUTH about it, this is a very dull election. The politicians assure me no one is interested in it except the candidates. The public doesn't care and there is no one to make them care. The government, for its part, asks merely to be re-elected. It is not seeking to create new issues and new alarms. The opposition, on the other hand, appears incapable of creating them.

I have known several elections in British Columbia rather intimately. (That is why I am such a cynical and wicked old man.) But I have never known an election that appeared so certain, fixed and unalterable as this one. No politician of any party, so far as I can find, even suggests for a moment that the government will be beaten. No Conservative claims the possibility of a majority for his party. The thing is going largely by default. This is very bad in a democracy and while it may appear largely accidental—the old accident of leadership—perhaps a deeper law is at work. The two major parties are identical in their views so why change them around?

We have reached in Canada, indeed, a position where political parties can retain office almost indefinitely because there is no effective opposition. This is so in the Dominion. The Hepburn government goes on like the brook in Ontario. Mr. Bracken in Manitoba appears immortal. Mr. Aberhart shows signs of a shining and saintly immortality also. The present government of British Columbia was elected in 1916.

I am not saying that these are not good and perfect governments. No doubt they are, but they would be better still if they had just a little competition for the job. Certainly there is no competition in British Columbia today.

LANGUAGE

H. V. O'Brien in Chicago Daily News
What makes language "bad" is its intent. I think, for example, of the clergyman I once knew who, when he missed a shot on the golf course, was wont to exclaim: "Oh, pump-handle!"

Now as an epithet, "pump-handle" is certainly innocuous enough, but when considered in the light of the circumstances, it becomes a rich and fruity oath. There was nothing about "pump-handle" to offend the most sensitive; but in Heaven, where the score is accurately kept, that clergyman got a black mark chalked up against him. As Heaven heard the word, it was blackly profane—as black as any ever uttered by an unregenerate who has just missed a two-foot putt.

"Miss Alice ain't home," said the colored maid to a caller who had asked her for the young lady soon to be married. "She's done gone down to de class."

"What class?" asked the caller.
"Miss Alice gwine to be married, you know, an' she's taking lessons in domestic silence."

WAR AND WHEAT

HITLER'S recent considerable successes at the northern and southern ends of the battle line in Russia have extra importance for Canada. They mean that Canada's wheat will be needed to help fight the war, and to avert the famine that threatens mankind as one of its consequences.

When the Germans plunged into Russia they obviously had several objectives. Chief hope was a total knockout of the Red army, and forced collapse of the Soviet regime, which would have made the Nazis potential masters of the whole huge land bloc from France on the west to Siberia on the east. This hope was blasted.

The Communist armies have fought magnificently. They have opposed the Germans far more effectively than has been the case anywhere else on land in this war. There is nothing in all the long successful history of Russian resistance to invasion which surpasses the record of Stalin's armies—and little that equals it. Unless those Red armies should collapse within the next two or three weeks—unless they should do in the third month what they have shown no sign whatever of doing in the first two months—Hitler has no hope of knocking out Russia this year.

But Hitler had other clear and ultra-important prizes in mind when he sent his armies east. Chief of these were the wheat lands of the Ukraine and the oil wells of the Caucasus.

The Nazis now hold most of the Russian Ukraine—most of the best granary in eastern Europe. It may be true that the Germans obtained none of this year's crop of Ukrainian wheat—and that the Russians were able either to withdraw it all in advance of the Nazi arrival, or destroy it.

But by next year, if Hitler is still in possession, the Ukraine could produce enough wheat to solve a very large part of the Nazi food problem.

That fact has both positive and negative aspects. For it not only means that Ukraine wheat could keep Germans well enough fed to keep on fighting for years. It also means that lack of that wheat will make it far more difficult for the Russian armies to hold out and for the dispossessed Russian peasant to avoid outright starvation.

That is, I believe, what Mr. Churchill was talking about in his radio speech on the very first day of the Russo-German war. Invasion of the Ukraine threatens a possible old-world famine. A possible old-world famine means that Canada's recent policy of enforced restriction on wheat growing is not only short-sighted but positively inhumane.

The government should now concentrate on providing enough storage space to preserve the wheat, which will not always be a glut on the market but a veritable life saver to much of mankind.

OIL NEXT
The length of this war probably depends, more than on any other factor, on whether or not the Nazis can acquire new and plentiful supplies of oil.

The Nazis were known to be short of oil before they attacked Russia; they must be desperate for it now. There is a little oil in the eastern Ukraine, not too far from where the Nazis now are. But the huge Russian supplies are across the Caucasus Mountains, hundreds of miles from the present battle line. The move into Iran by the British and the Russian armies means that the approaches to all the oil in the whole middle east are now in the hands of Germany's enemies.

To get oil Germany not only has to travel hundreds of miles, via Russia, or Turkey. Then she has to overcome the armies of defence. She also has to prevent the destruction of the wells before she gets there.

The fact that the Russians themselves blew up their huge power project on the Dnieper River—the possession of which all Russia was most proud—is pretty good indication of what they will do to the oil wells if the Nazis get too close.

All of which probably fore-shadows swift and extremely powerful moves by the Nazis. They have to get oil even to keep on fighting. We would be foolishly over-confident if we assumed that they could not get it.

And if they should get it—by hook or by crook—they will have the one thing which they now chiefly lack to enable them to keep on fighting this war, for years if necessary, to avert defeat.

A FREE COUNTRY

From L'Action Catholique, Quebec

Speaking in New York quite recently, Prime Minister King said: "We are as free as the United States to participate or not in any war. The Canadian people entered the present war of its own free will. In taking such a capital decision, Parliament was the free medium of a free nation. Our declaration of war was signed by the King, acting on the advice of the Canadian ministers of His Majesty and the royal proclamation was issued in the name of Canada."

This statement of Mr. King's is strictly in accordance with our national status, Canada, and the other Dominions as well, were free to enter the war or stand aside. We decided for participation, while Ireland chose to remain neutral. Canada, it is true, does not yet enjoy all the rights it is entitled to in virtue of its status as an independent and free country. It has no flag of its own, but it can have one the moment the Senate and the House of Commons so decide. It is also true that the final say in civil matters belongs to the Privy Council, though such appeal has been abolished in criminal matters; but it is within the power of the Canadian Parliament to do as it sees fit. Again, it is said that we cannot amend our constitution without the assent of the British Parliament. That is true, but neither can Great Britain amend it without Canada's agreement; and remember, that the responsibility for such a situation rests with our delegates to Imperial conferences.

ADVANCE IN QUEBEC

From Toronto Star

The Godbout government in Quebec has enacted two measures of far-reaching importance. One is the bill making school attendance compulsory for children. This will undoubtedly bring about important and desirable changes in the school system. Another measure requires the reporting and public treatment of venereal diseases. Anyone found suffering from venereal infection who refuses to submit to treatment will be treated by the provincial authority in a hospital or prison.

SPIRIT OF INTOLERANCE

From Ottawa Journal

In Delhi, a small community in western Ontario, a deputation of citizens asked the council to pass a by-law prohibiting the use of any language other than English on village streets.

This is of a piece with the action of a school section in eastern Ontario where a new teacher was dismissed because taxpayers took exception to her "foreign-sounding" name, although she is a good Canadian.

Intolerance of this sort is greatly to be deplored. Racial pride is a fine thing, and commendable but it can be overdone. It is silly to imagine that all the patriotism of this country expresses itself in the tongue of Shakespeare, and that a street conversation in Polish or Norwegian just naturally must be concerned with treason.

WAR AIM ENOUGH

From New York Times

This is no time for definite commitments about proposed new boundaries and colorings on a map. But it is not too soon to consider the broader aspects of a peace and to plan how best to create the main structure of that brave new world in which small nations need not fear aggression, in which access to the raw materials of the earth can be assured to all countries and in which armaments once more can be limited. But before even the most can be tried, Hitler and Nazism must be destroyed. That is what the British are fighting to achieve, and for the present that is war practical plan enough for permanent peace aim enough.

Four Albert Head Children Do Much For Red Cross

Four Albert Head children, one of them an English war guest, have what is perhaps a unique record of service to the Red Cross cause, having raised $51 this summer by their own efforts.

Last year Miss Frances M. Valliquette of Albert Head decided to organize a Junior Red Cross, but as regulations state that such an organization can be headed only by a teacher, nurse or doctor, she started a junior auxiliary to the Red Cross instead. The seven children who constituted that group met once a week, paid two cents each for tea, worked for refugees, and made a tour of the district selling "surprise packages," and at the end of the summer turned in nearly $14 and a goodly number of garments to the senior unit.

This year the group is reduced to four, Diana Jenkins and Evelyn Wells of the quarantine station, Margaret Mackenzie and Enid Wallace of Albert Head, Enid being a war guest. Diana and Evelyn come six miles for the meetings, which are held at the home of Major and Mrs. Potts, but their enthusiasm is unbounded.

A report given by Evelyn Wells, the secretary, before the senior unit recently showed that the children had completed their objective, a complete layette, with additional garments, to be sent to London for victims of Nazi bombs. Money was raised through a talent fund, a donation of $1 being divided into quarters, when Miss Valliquette offered a prize to the one who doubled this investment in the most novel way, Enid Wallace being the winner.

As the culmination of their summer's effort, the four children, headed by Miss Valliquette, arranged a novel entertainment, by which they netted $26. A program, including two films, "The New Britain" and "London Can Take It," lent by the War Savings Committee, was followed by a novel contest. A map of Great Britain showed about 53 towns marked by numbered flags. These were sold for 10 cents each and London was "auctioned" to the highest bidder, netting $4, after which the map was sold for $5.40. A Big Ben contest also netted $3.35, after which the children served refreshments, which they had made and donated entirely by themselves, the silver collection taken up from the audience of about 40 adding another $13.25 to the proceeds.

For the entertainment the little school was decorated with a large Union Jack, a Red Cross banner made of a sheet with a large paper cross, and the layette and other garments on display, the four little members of the auxiliary wearing white frocks and shoes and red sashes.

In addition to their other enterprises the children started a "London box" for donations for themselves, this netting $1.55 during the summer. Other generous friends helped them with cash donations amounting to $13.60, including Mrs. Longhurst, Mr. Griffin, Mesdames Jordan, Potts, Peacock, Mathews and Amos.

Miss Valliquette and the four children were warmly praised on the results of their industry and initiative when the report of their summer's work was presented at the meeting of the senior unit held at Albert Head on August 26, the hope being expressed that their example might be emulated in other districts.

Changes Made in Naval Comforts

The staff of the Victoria Depot, Royal Naval War Comforts Committee (of the Admiralty) asks all their workers on the books to observe the following fresh instructions:

To stop making sleeveless jerseys and to concentrate on jerseys with sleeves and high necks, as well as long bodies. Several jerseys have been only 22 inches up the back instead of the minimum of 24 inches. Fishermen wear jerseys long in the body so that the bottom can be folded up to form a thick band for warmth round that part of the body. In order to make the jersey on the warm side for the north Atlantic and the North Sea it will be better to make the length down the back a full 26 inches.

It will be of deep interest to the workers to hear that the Admiralty has authorized the Merchant Navy Comforts' Service to place 25 emergency rescue kits in each of H.M. ships on rescue and escort duty. An emergency rescue kit comprises one vest, one pair of pants, one pair of socks, a sweater, a pair of shoes, trousers, belt, scarf and two handkerchiefs. These 10 items comprise the absolute minimum necessary to clothe a man just picked out of the sea and costs about $10 each. T. Kirkland Bridge, the organizer of the national appeal for funds, stated that up to June 18 over £31,000 had been collected.

The chaplains of the mission to seamen continue to issue woolen comforts to seamen who are without these things, including those landed from rescue ships. This missionary society has always looked after the well-being of the crews of merchant ships in time of peace, and now in time of war the chaplains follow the splendid fellows into the minesweepers and other ships of war where the naval reservists are serving. They also continue to care for the fine chaps serving in the freight ships under the red and other allied ensigns.

Now that wool is rationed in Great Britain, it is more than ever important to keep up the supply of standard comforts made with the Empire-made wool. As low-necked and sleeveless jerseys will no longer be sent, turtle necks for insertion in same with a suitable gift of silverware by her sister, Miss Betty Dingwall, on behalf of the assembled guests. The tea table was arranged with a lace cloth and bowl of asters, and Mrs. G. C. Dingwall presided at the urns, and Mrs. J. V. Harbord-Harbord and Miss Grace Stuart assisted in serving. The invited guests were Mesdames G. C. Dingwall, V. Hays, J. V. Harbord-Harbord, M. Lang, G. Lovitt, R. Sales, A. Roberts, F. R. Wells, and the Misses Grace Stuart, Bernadette Corcoran, Georgina Dowdall, Elsie Appleyard, Evelyn Wells, Pat FitzPatrick, Marjorie Delf, Betty Dingwall and Kay Burnett.

Growing Child Should Get Pint
Of Milk Daily

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
The ringing of school bells calls youngsters back to their study books. It should call mothers, and fathers too, to a study of nutrition for their growing children at the same time.

Every day: Milk, at least a pint; preferably a quart; butter, at every meal; cereal, bread or potato at every meal; vegetables, other than potatoes, at least two daily. One raw or quickly cooked; leafy kinds often. Fruit, once or twice a day. Citrus or other raw fruit or tomatoes daily. Egg or meat; the older child may have both. Sweets, in small amounts at end of meal.

How can the busy mother provide the proper foods for her younger children, her older children and also for the adult members of the family and find time to get her other work done? By planning her family meals so that every member of whatever age will get what is needed according to his age. It is not necessary to have separate menus for children of various ages.

The two-year-old gets only small servings, the six-year-old gets moderate servings, and for the 10-year-old there should be very generous servings.

Dinner menus for all the family: (1) Meat and vegetable stew, buttered new peas, toasted rolls, milk, pear, raw ripe, stewed, or baked.

(2) Liver and rice loaf, carrots in parsley butter, apple salad, bread and butter, milk; quick blueberry pudding.

(3) Rib roast of beef, mashed potatoes, Swiss chard or other greens, bread and butter, milk, baked apple.

(4) Broiled lamb chop, baked Hubbard squash, finely cut cabbage and mayonnaise, bread and butter, milk, baked prune whip.

(5) Baked halibut, summer squash, sliced ripe tomatoes, bread and butter, milk, tapioca cream.

(6) Omelet, creamed mixed vegetables, lettuce sandwich, milk, fruit cup and gingerbread.

WEDDINGS

CRONK-CREED

The wedding of Doris May Creed, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Creed, 2534 Wark Street, to Stoker George James Cronk, R.C.N.V.R., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Cronk, took place at the home of Major A. McInnes, 850 Cormorant Street.

The bride wore a street-length dress of white sheer, white turban with a shoulder veil and matching accessories and a corsage bouquet of pale pink rosebuds and swainsonia. Mrs. A. J. Frewing, the bride's sister, attended her in a pale blue dress with a hat to match and a corsage bouquet of pink carnations and pink heather.

The groom was supported by Stoker William Latzer, R.C.N. A small reception was held following the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. The rooms were decorated with pink and mauve asters. The supper table was centred with the wedding cake on a lace cloth with vases of pink and white carnations. The bride's mother wore a navy blue dress with a lighter blue hat and a corsage of pink carnations.

After a honeymoon spent up island, Mr. and Mrs. Cronk will reside in Victoria.

LAWSON-FLETCHER

Her long, graceful gown of filmy white sheer accented by her dark hair making a picture of bridal loveliness, Joan Beryl, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fletcher, 1270 May Street, became the bride Saturday evening at 8 at Christ Church Cathedral of Kenneth Shaw Lawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Lawson, 954 Cowichan Street, Dean Spencer Elliott officiating.

Walking down the aisle on the arm of her father, the bride met the groom with his best man, Mr. Edward Colgate, at the chancel rail, on either side of which were tall standards of pink and white gladioli and asters, branches of miniature ivy trailing to the floor. Her lovely French-figured sheer gown fell in filmy folds from the tight-fitting waist, the back fullness extending into a fan-shaped train, with tiny buttons of self-material down the back of the bodice. The neckline was cut on sweetheart lines and the long sleeves, puffed at the shoulders, were fitted from elbow to wrist with points extending over the hands and fastened with buttons of the same material. Her fingertip veil of French tulle was caught to her head with a coronet of pearls, on either side of which was a tiny cluster of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of gardenias, pale pink rosebuds and carnations, from which fell streamers knotted with tiny sweetheart roses.

Her two attendants, Mrs. Robert Poyntz as maid of honor and Miss Mickey Lawson as bridesmaid, made a charming picture in pale pink chiffon gowns over taffeta slips, with sweetheart decolletage, full skirts falling from fitted waists, and bishop sleeves. Their Watteau hats of pale pink net were pleated around the edges, with fresh pink and white carnations on the crown and they carried Colonial bouquets of pink and white carnations and rosebuds.

The wedding choruses were rendered by Mr. Stanley Bulley at the organ and the ushers were Messrs. Robert Poyntz, Melville Lawson, Victor Painter and G. F. Dunne.

The cake was especially decorated by Mr. W. Petherbridge and presented to the bride as a gift. Baskets of pink, mauve and white blooms filled the reception rooms. Mrs. Norris received her guests costumed in mulberry crepe with a dusky pink hat and corsage bouquet of pink roses, and assisting her was Mrs. Cunningham in a Ducharme printed crepe frock with gold Swiss straw hat, complemented by a corsage of red and gold roses.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the Uplands Golf Club, Mrs. Fletcher welcoming her guests costumed in aqua blue, her floor-length crepe gown having long sleeves and a matching jacket edged with pink braiding. With it she wore a large picture hat in aqua shade, with pink and aqua flowers worked on the crown. Mrs. Lawson, who assisted in receiving, chose a powder blue floor-length gown of chiffon for the occasion, with long sleeves and matching model hat. Both hostesses wore corsages of carnations and roses. The bride and groom stood underneath a large white wedding bell, between tall baskets of pink and white gladioli and asters. An orchestra was in attendance, the guests dancing during the evening.

Centring the bridal table was a three-tiered wedding cake, topped with pink rosebuds, on either side of which stood tall white tapers in crystal holders and crystal vases of pink and white carnations.

For her wedding trip up-island the bride changed to a queen's blue crepe dress with large felt hat in matching shade, blue accessories and contrasting dusty pink fitted coat. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Lawson will reside on Durban Street.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mrs. Charles Fletcher and Charles Jr. of Seattle, Mr. Scott Murie and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Roach and Miss Helen Barton of Vancouver.

CUNNINGHAM-NORRIS

Wearing traditional white against a background of white and mauve asters and pink gladioli banked against the chancel rails of St. Mary's Church, Rita Margaret, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Norris, 2909 Richmond Road, became the bride Saturday evening at 8 of Allan Burness Cunningham, only son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Cunningham, 1187 Hampshire Road, Rev. Cyril Venables officiating.

Given away by her father, the bride wore an Elizabethan gown of white taffeta extending into a slight train, the brocaded bodice having long tight sleeves and a sweetheart neckline. Clusters of orange blossoms held her illusion net veil at either side of a halo head-dress and she carried a shower bouquet of white gladioli, heather and pink rosebuds.

In similar full-skirted gowns of different shades were the two bridesmaids, Miss Judith Ellis in blue violet taffeta and Miss Jean Wilson in "romance" pink, their long-sleeved jackets being buttoned down the front from yokes of sheer crepe, and their halo head-dresses of flowers and taffeta blending with their frocks. Completing their ensembles were arm bouquets of pink snapdragons and carnations. Acting as groomsmen was Mr. Gordon Thompson and the ushers were Messrs. Kenneth Cave and Jack Norris, residing at the organ was Mr. F. T. C. Wickett and as the register was being signed Mr. Arthur Jackman sang "For You Alone."

At the reception at the home of the bride's parents which followed the ceremony, the bride cut her wedding cake with the same knife used by her godmother on her wedding day. Mr. J. A. MacDonald proposed the toast and during the evening vocal solos were rendered by Mr. F. Glendinning.

At the reception, held at "Bryn Lodge," St. Andrew's Street, home of the bride's parents, the bride and groom received their guests before a fireplace banked with blue and white asters in tall standards, pink zinnias and ferns in silver baskets, the same floral decorations being carried out in the reception rooms. Mrs. Chinn was costumed in a Marina blue silk crepe tailored frock with grey redingote and matching hat, set off by a squirrel neckpiece and navy accessories. With it she wore a corsage of pink roses and violas. Assisting her was the groom's mother, wearing a "heavenly blue" crepe dress-maker suit with navy accessories and a corsage of Ophelia roses. Tall white tapers lighted the supper table, on which was a Madeira centrepiece, with a cake set in folds of white tulle surrounded by vases of Butterfly roses. Mr. D. Sinclair, an old family friend, proposed the toast to the bride, after which she cut the cake.

For her honeymoon trip to the mainland, the bride changed to a tailored dress of pearl grey, over which she wore a dusky blue wool coat with blue fox collar and navy blue accessories and corsage of Sweetheart roses. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Attwell will make their home at 551 Joffre Street, Esquimalt.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. George Stokes of Vancouver, Mr. D. Addison and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Noon of Halifax, N.S. Among many beautiful gifts received were a silver tea service from the bride's associates at McLennan, McFeely & Prior Ltd., and a waffle iron from the groom's fellow-workers at Andrew Sheret Ltd.

Letters to the Editor

RELIGION vs. SCIENCE

In reply to the letter of R. B. Williams and his criticism of what he terms my "extraordinary letter," may I point out that one cannot attribute personality or any other finite attribute to infinity. An infinite God can, therefore, only be conceived as an abstract principle such as "truth" and, therefore, any religion which inculcates belief in falsehoods is blasphemous.

As Sir G. Elliott Smith states: "If there is one thing that emerges more clearly than another from the study of the early history of civilization, it is that what we now call religion was originally nothing more than the practical application of the scientific knowledge of early times. . . . And since religion is in essence a discarded science, it is obvious that science, which is progressive and ever searching for new means of discovering truth and giving it expression, has nothing to do with the rejected doctrines of its own former history."

Sir James Frazer also states: "The hope of progress, moral and intellectual, as well as material, is bound up with the fortunes of science, and every obstacle placed in the way of scientific discovery is wrong to humanity."

Any idea of God that human beings may have is a purely human idea derived from their own minds as is plainly seen from a study of the Bible. In the Old Testament Jehovah was more blood-thirsty than the God of the New Testament. The former preferred a slash (circumcision), the latter a sprinkle (baptism) from their respective worshippers. As mankind evolves, ideas of God change. My belief is that a search for Truth is a search for God and that pursuit is difficult enough without being cluttered up by outworn modes of thought. Nevertheless, I also believe in the right of everyone to think for himself and I most certainly did not damn Mr. Holdcroft with faint praise as R. B. Williams asserts.

The anecdote in connection with the bishop and the judge was a comment on Mr. Holdcroft's article: "What's the Matter with the Churches?" in which he quoted: "He that believeth shall be saved—he that believeth not shall be damned." In my letter I stated: "The question arose as to which man had the most power over others." These words were omitted in the printed form. I did not invent the story, although I do not vouch for its truth. The biographer of the judge may have invented it, but if Mr. Williams is willing, like Mr. Holdcroft, to swallow hook, line and sinker, stories of the sun standing still to facilitate murder, the donkey preaching to its master, the Creator of the Universe ordering Hosea to commit adultery and Ezekiel to eat dung, a fig tree withered by a curse, the exit of devils from a man and their entrance into the bodies of swine, etc., ad infinitum, I do not see why he should be so incredulous regarding an anecdote concerning two men who, in a friendly and humorous manner, were arguing about their power over other men.

STELLA M. JENNINGS.

EVOLUTION ONLY HALF-WAY

"I have been intrigued by M. E. Bird's letter. Let me congratulate Mr. Bird upon being so human as to refer to 'moss-covered oldtimers.' It would appear that while 'a rolling stone gathers no moss,' oldtimers gather a muchness of it. One also wonders if 'moss' then has no place in Life?"

Life must be accepted as a whole to be appreciated, evolutionism only goes half-way.

If we do not first accept light, how can we account for the colors of the rainbow after they have been through a prism? Are these colors (so-called) not already in the light in the first place, so to speak? The light is! Where does evolution start?

The walrus cries: "This time it is the truth that speaks!"

SELF-CHOSEN THOROUGH-BREDS

The B.I.'s are thoroughbreds. The original stock used to tap each other on the bean with clubs and then the Romans came, conquered and married them and made great improvements. Then came the Danes, and all the time the poor natives were subjected to torays by fierce, red-whiskered Scotchmen, with red noses and tam-o'-shanters, hoot mon, bang went saxepe, and there were the blood-thirsty Irish, one standing in the dear old London slums (the richest city on earth), telling of Lake Killarney and Kathleen Mavourneen, the grey dawn in breaking, and a Canadian Canuck saying, "You're telling me"—is it any wonder that the natives were "druv to drink" and became increasingly puzzled?

The Japs, another collection of self-chosen boys—the girls don't cut much ice—self-chosen to bring in more disorder in the East and specialize in bombing and killing Chinese women and children. In short, killing the very decent, wise, old-fashioned Chinese who have been following Confucius for 4,000 years and whose god was delight, not John Calvin.

Now what have all these great self-chosen folk in common? Only the splendid idea that each one of them has been chosen to sit on the top of the world and exploit it for his own private benefit and skim off all the cream for himself—the idea of unselfish co-operation for the welfare of the whole human family (floundering in the mud as usual) being quite beyond their outlook.

C. WALKDEN.

BONUSES AND INFLATION

The payment of a bonus to offset the increase in the cost of living raises the question: "Are we in for a period of inflation?" and, if so, "How can we help to check it?" While we all appreciate the action of the firms giving the bonus, and are very thankful for the temporary financial relief it brings, the writer feels that the payment on a salary percentage basis is not the wisest way to distribute it. Some firms (like the Saanich Municipality) have adopted the flat-rate principle, and seeing that the real object of the bonus is to relieve the pressure when it is most felt, that appears to be the most effective way.

The first thing to realize is that during wartime the inevitable rise in the price of commodities is not so much an "increase in prices" as a "decrease in the power of money."

The attempt to stop this by increasing the amount of money in circulation leads to inflation as sure as "God made little apples."

You can no more stop prices rising by pumping in more money than you can stop a leak by pouring in more water.

Things will cost more in war time, and the dire effects are felt most by those at the bottom of the financial ladder.

The problem is not how to retain the present purchasing power of all incomes—that is impossible—but how to minimize the hardships imposed on those at the bottom without artificially increasing the amount of money in circulation.

More money with the same amount of goods only means still higher prices, but a redistribution of the amount already in circulation will furnish relief where it is most needed and at the same time help to stabilize prices. Firms that are generously trying to help their staff can do this most effectively by using whatever money is available for a bonus by distributing it equally among those whose incomes are, less than, say, $30 a week.

A 5 per cent salary bonus if distributed in that way would probably work out at about $1.50 per week for each head of a family, and $1 for a single person. This would just about meet the requirements as they stand today.

Those in the higher brackets may argue that they are just as much entitled to a bonus as the lower-paid workers, but the thing to remember is this:

The increase in the cost of living has to be absorbed somewhere—by someone—and if those who are able to absorb it, by a certain amount of self-sacrifice, are not willing to do so voluntarily, then there is no question about it; it will be done involuntarily by the continual decrease in the value of both their income and their savings.

The payment of a bonus on a salary percentage basis does not meet the exigencies of the occasion, because the percentage in the cost of living and the percentage on the salaries have little or no connection.

A 10 per cent rise in the price of milk means more to the family man than a 20 per cent rise in the price of a suit of clothes. The one he has to buy every day and is an absolute necessity, and the other only once a year—or less.

The increase of 10c a pound in the price of bacon means $10 a week to the man earning $10 a week, but only 1/5 of 1 per cent to the man earning $50 a week.

The cost of actual necessities is something "positive"—not "relative" to salary, and can be stated better in dollars and cents than percentages.

A 5 per cent salary bonus to a $20 a week man is $1. If that will cover the actual increase in his cost of living, the same amount will cover the same increase to the man drawing $50, who gets a bonus of $2.50, leaving him $1.50 ahead of the game, because necessities cost just the same whether your income is high or low.

A cry of "fire" is heard in the theatre, and there is a mad scramble for the exits, which immediately become blocked.

The only hope for the crowd is that there are a sufficient number of people ready to risk their lives in an effort to stem the wild rush, themselves absorbing the pressure from behind to release the pressure in front. If this can be done, a catastrophe may be averted.

The fear of inflation acts like the cry of "fire!" and each one in trying to save his own hide helps create the very conditions we want to avoid.

It would be well if this fact could be drilled into the minds of every one of us.

The total increase in the cost of living in wartime has to be absorbed by the total population. It is one of the ways by which the war is paid for.

If those who because of their financial position are able to bear a good part of the burden, not only fail to do so, but accept a bonus that actually makes their purchasing power greater, then that much more burden must fall on those in the lower-salary brackets, who have no way of evading it.

Special Markers

The B.C. Government Travel Bureau, in co-operation with the Department of Public Works, has inaugurated a system of marking outstanding points of scenic interest throughout the province, Hon. W. J. Asselstine, Minister of Trade and Industry, said today.

"The idea," said Mr. Asselstine, "is to inform the tourist as he travels on the highway of the province. It is felt that interest will be greatly stimulated by identifying the peaks, lakes and rivers which contribute so largely to the attractions of British Columbia as a vacationland."

Two types of markers are being used, a simpler design for general use and a more elaborate pattern in certain instances. Markers have already been placed at points on the Island Highway, and the scheme will gradually be extended until all such points have been covered.

Kipling's Jungle Book To Be Movie; No Dodo Birds

By PAUL HARRISON

HOLLYWOOD—The Brothers Korda—Alexander, producer; Zoltan, director; Vincent, art director—are making a movie out of Rudyard Kipling's "Jungle Book," and the result really will be something to see if it's as impressive as the preparations.

About 40 miles from Hollywood at Sherwood Forest, they've built a 10-acre jungle complete with river, a village and handsome temple, and many a barrel of monkeys. They also have an assortment of elephants, tigers, bear, panthers, leopards, jackals, tropical birds, snakes, crocodiles, and water buffalo. By now, most of these are personal friends of Sabu, the young East Indian star who seems to be having more fun than anybody except a couple of dozen monkeys who have got loose and gone native in the forest.

KALA NAG MISSING
About the only thing they haven't got is the boss elephant they wanted. That's Kala Nag ("Black Snake" in Hindi) which was used in "Elephant Boy" and is still in the interior of India. Ship space probably could have been found and they were willing to take a chance on submarines, but they couldn't bear to make poor old Kala Nag walk 600 miles to the coast. He's too tall for clearance if transported by trucks or barge.

Lawrence Stallings, who wrote the script, hasn't made all the animals talk as they do in the Kipling book. The python and cobra will talk because they hiss

TO SPEAK HERE

Sir George Palsh, noted English economist, and Albert Rhys Williams, author of "The Soviets" and observer of the Russian scene, will speak tomorrow evening at the Empress Hotel, under the auspices of the British-Russian Aid Committee.

Sir George Palsh has been a governor of the London School of Economics and Political Science for 30 years and for many years was editor of the Statist, one of the leading economic papers of London.

Rhys Williams was in Russia when the revolution took place and lived there for 10 years before. Williams and his wife lived among the Russian peasants to discover the heart of the Soviet masses and from these years of country life came his book "The Russian Land." In his volume, "The Soviets," are brief biographies of Lenin, whom he knew personally, and Stalin, which are termed by some critics the best to be found.

Other books by Williams include "Through the Russian Revolution" and "Lenin, the Man and His Work."

using is no model of patience or virtue.

Other day while a scene was being rehearsed by the water's edge, a crocodile popped up snorting, and scared the bear out of a three-weeks' growth of inhibitions. He turned on his trainer and the fellow fled. In a safe spot, the trainer explained he had been working bears 40 years but that the most important thing he'd learned was when to drop his pride and run like blazes.

A.R.P. ACTIVITIES

District 2 A Fairfield, No. 2 Patrol (Group Posts Nos. 8, 12, 17)—Wardens are requested to note that a complete course of instruction, which they should attend, commences at 8 p.m. September 12 and each succeeding Friday at the Sir James Douglas School auditorium. Every phase of a warden's work and duties will be dealt with. The course, which includes practical exercises, will probably be completed in nine sessions. Twenty-four wardens are required to put the patrol on a sound basis. Every warden is asked to get a neighbor to join up now. Send in their names to Col. F. G. Hood, 1161 McClure. Telephone G 6289.

District 5 A, Mount Tolmie—All wardens under the command of F. Druce are requested to attend a meeting of the Mount Douglas High School on September 3 at 8 p.m., when the winter program will be discussed.

The wardens of 1B district, Oak Bay, met Wednesday in the Municipal Hall, and Lieut. Nourse, R.C.A., spoke on "Air Defences of Great Britain."

Tomorrow night a review of first aid work will be held and all wardens who have taken the first aid course are asked to bring their first aid books and bandages.

An A.R.P. rally will be held September 10 in Oak Bay High School, and an invitation is extended to all citizens of Oak Bay to attend. Attorney-General Wismer will be the speaker and demonstrations in A.R.P. work will be given by the B.C. police and fire department.

You have to perspire

Use Lifebuoy

—the one soap especially made to prevent "B.O." (Body Odor)

● You may have looks and brains and personality—every quality that spells success. But if you also have "B.O." you'll find it hard to get ahead.

WE ALL PERSPIRE CONSTANTLY. And perspiration left on the skin decomposes, becomes stale, offensive. That is why we all need Lifebuoy. LIFEBOUY IS THE ONLY SOAP ESPECIALLY MADE TO PREVENT "B.O." No other popular soap has Lifebuoy's special DEODORIZING ingredient. No other soap gives day-long ALL-OVER protection against offending.

Use Lifebuoy regularly in your bath. You'll love its rich INVIGORATING lather. You'll love, too, the way it leaves you thrillingly FRESH—confident of LASTING cleanliness. Use it for face and hands, too—it's 20% milder than many so-called beauty and baby soaps.

UTILITIES VITAL IN WAR EFFORT

Few People Realize How Vital a Part Public Utility Services Play in the National War Effort

Electric Power is needed in plants and factories engaged in the making of munitions; in ship-building yards, machine shops, lumber mills and many other allied industries.

Transportation at reasonable rates, operating under regular schedules, is essential to carry the workers between their homes and places of employment.

Gas Fuel also plays an extremely important part in this time of national emergency. It provides an efficient and easily controlled source of heat for many specialized manufacturing and processing purposes. The manufacture of gas fuel also makes available such useful and valuable by-products as Coke, Tar, Ammonia, Benzol, Toluol, etc., all of which have a value of more than usual significance at this time.

23 Years After

A retrospect concerning Marshal Petain, by H. Gauthier, La France Libre, Ottawa Section, in Ottawa Citizen.

"In 1917 I put an end to mutinies." So spoke on August 12, 1941, Marshal Petain, dictator of Vichy and not of France. This article would never have been written had those eight words never been pronounced.

The men who mutinied after the attacks of April 16 and May 5, 1917, were some of the finest shock troops of the French army. Men who for close on to three years had gone through hell and fire, from the Marne to Verdun to the Somme. These men were not traitors nor defeatists, they were the workers and the peasants of France, and if they mutinied there must have been good reasons and it's about time the truth be told.

NIVELLE THE BUTCHER
The writer belonged to one of the corps that took part in those attacks and his corps did not mutiny but carried on at a cost that makes the present war look tame in comparison. Dawn, April 16, 1917, on a front of 25 miles, the attacking troops leap over the top. Noon, and the attack is completely broken; 50,000 men out of action, killed, wounded and missing. Why?

Here is the explanation. The army was under the command of General Nivelle, who had succeeded Marshal Joffre towards the end of 1916. Nivelle had made for himself a brilliant reputation as one of the defenders of Verdun, and as commander of the army which retook at Verdun in two brilliant counter-attacks what had been lost in five months.

On the basis of these successes, Nivelle was appointed commander-in-chief. Apostle of the attack, always certain of success, he lacked the will-power to put the parliamentarians in their places, and his headquarters became the rendezvous of ministers, senators, deputies, etc.

Nothing was secret, and the attack being prepared was advertised to all who wanted to know about it. To such an extent was the enemy informed that on the eve of the attack, in the German trenches facing ours along the Chemin des Dames, appeared posters such as these: "We expect you tomorrow." And they did expect and receive us. The slaughter was terrible; battalions moved down, trenches blown up after being taken.

MUTINIES
Nivelle was relieved of his command after the attack of May 5, and Petain appointed as commander-in-chief. Then the mutinies broke out. I did not have the chance to speak to some of those so-called mutineers. My corps was shifted to Alsace and did not come back to the Chemin des Dames until July. From July until October, we fought every day in that sector and no place in 1917 on the entire front, from the sea to Switzerland, saw so many casualties.

This is the story of the mutinies of 1917 in the French army. Marshal Petain should also have told that part of the story. The holocaust was so great that the morale of the army was broken, and at the end of 1917 the army of France was in such poor condition that the commander-in-chief (General Petain) undertook to visit personally during the winter of 1917-18 as many as possible of the men who had taken part in the attacks of 1917.

BLACKEST YEAR
Marshal Petain, even today, will not deny that he admitted the terrible errors that were committed during the year 1917—

THIS CAR WAS RUMBLING over the planking covering the Fulton Street-8th Avenue subway excavation at Pitkin and Autumn Avenues, in Brooklyn, N.Y., when the planking collapsed because of the heavy rains. The crater beneath was caused when lightning struck gas mains causing explosion and fire.

the blackest in the history of France during the last war. And, as I mentioned, he visited as many as he could. I will go back to a dark grey morning of January, 1918. In the courtyard of a farm in the small village of Trois-Puits, two miles south of Rheims, a company of colonial infantry is formed in column, waiting for the commander-in-chief. It is cold, raw; fingers holding rifles are numb, when the order comes—"Attention!"

An automobile. The commander-in-chief gets off, passes along the lines of men, of those men, Marshal, who on the plateau of Craonne and elsewhere along that front for more than five months played tag with death but never faltered. And today, more than 23 years after, if you ever read this, Marshal Petain, you may want to know what they thought then, as they looked at you when you did not look at them. "The old boy seems to be fagged out, he needs a rest more than we do." Not very uplifting, the visit of the commander-in-chief. Thank God, the morale was still good in our corps.

That was 23 years ago, Marshal Petain. You were a tired man then. Today the sons of those men and the ones that are left from the dark days of 1917, do not seem to be willing followers of your co-operation plan. Can you blame them? No one (and that includes myself) has ever doubted your love of France, but when you are asking France to help Germany, you are forgetting that mutinies sometimes are better than treasons.

C.C.F. to Choose Slate Thursday

Co-operative Commonwealth Federation will be the first of the three political parties to put its candidates in the field in Victoria riding.

The executive announced today their nominating convention will be held Thursday night in the James Bay Hall.

Three candidates will be chosen to contest the Victoria seats with balloting at the convention. Only two names are rumored so far as likelihoods, W. E. Caird, who carried the standard in previous elections, and Mrs. Kenneth McAllister, wife of the party's federal candidate here.

10 More U.S. Industries To Be Scrapped for War

By PETER EDSON
WASHINGTON, D.C.—Regarding reorganization, the pinch of defence is going to start squeezing hard on civilian production within the next 30 days. It has been feared before, it can be predicted with a certainty now.

At least 10 industries are going the way of the aluminum utensil industry—which is to the scrap heap—for duration of the emergency. There just doesn't seem to be any other way out.

Listing the temporarily doomed industries brings up these common everyday things you'll have to learn to do without if you need new equipment, or get by on what you have:

Washing machines, electrical household appliances, refrigerators, commercial laundry equipment, air conditioning equipment, heaters and ranges, light fixtures and appliances, metal furniture, kitchen equipment, dry cleaners' equipment.

You have to go into only a few of those to see how continuation of their production on a normal basis cuts across the defence effort.

A 30-per-cent cut has already been levied against the washing machine industry. Steel sheet

Y.W.C.A. in EGYPT

TORONTO, Ont.—A houseboat on the Nile is being used as a Y.W.C.A. centre in Egypt, it was stated today in a report on world activities of the Y.W.C.A., issued by the National Council here.

In Beirut, Syria, the Y.W.C.A. staff is still carrying on; the centre at Istanbul, Turkey, was reported working to capacity. Branches were operating at Chengtu, China, and at Shanghai.

In Palestine, a part of the Frenchescan Hospice had been converted into a Y.W.C.A. hostel and club for nurses. In memory of his late wife, the Maharajah of Darbhanga, India, donated half of a large sum required to set up recreation huts in the Near Eastern desert.

Reports had been received showing that Y.W.C.A. branches were still active in occupied France, Holland and Sweden. show-verted. te

By PETE SALLAWAY

NEXT to base-running, Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker say the biggest change in baseball since they played the game so well is represented in the preponderance of swinging hitters.

Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Cardinals and Jimmy Wilson of the Chicago Cubs contend scores of batters could tack from 25 to 100 points on their averages simply by concentrating on meeting the ball.

But the bulk of the boys have shot for the fences since Babe Ruth revolutionized the game and got $80,000 a year for finding the range.

There are comparatively few hit-where-they-ain't hitters in the Willie Keeler type.

Johnny Mize of the Cards was one who got wise to himself this year. The St. Louis star decided to fatten his average in place of aiming for the distant seats.

The early and protracted slump of Frank McCormick of the Cincinnati Reds was traced to the home-run urge.

Frank Frisch relates how a hand injury once helped the Cardinals to a pennant. He couldn't grip the bat to swing, so simply met the ball, and base hits rained all over the place.

Competent judges say athletes like Joe Gordon of the New York Yankees, Bob Johnson of the Philadelphia Athletics, Ernie Lombardi of the Reds, Dolph Camilli of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Vince DiMaggio of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Jim Tabor of the Boston Red Sox, Hal Trosky and Gerald Walker of the Cleveland Indians, Rudy York and Bruce Campbell of the Detroit Tigers and Babe Dahlgren of the Cubs would be vastly more formidable over a 154-game stretch if they were satisfied to simply get the fat part of the bat in the way of the ball instead of aiming for the out-lying precincts.

Henry Greenberg did more than all right, but admits his averages would have been higher had he been content to get the willow in the path of the sphere.

"But people don't like to see a big bloke like me hit singles," explains Hank.

Ruth, James Emory, Foxx and Greenberg were amazing swinging hitters down through the years.

They had marvelous co-ordination. They were to baseball what Craig Wood, Samuel Jackson, Snead and Jimmy Thomson are to golf. They did not sacrifice timing, the secret of hitting, in their tremendous swings.

But the average batter firing for the entire works forces himself—presses—with the result that he swings ahead or behind the ball, upcups or tops it.

The uppercut becomes a strikeout or fly ball hitter like Vince DiMaggio.

Ted Williams has patience at the plate and isn't trying to belt every pitch out of the yard.

As Harry Hellmann, the old Detroit whacker, points out, Williams' rhythm is the rhythm of the pitcher.

Between pitches the thin kid of the Red Sox will turn around and talk to the catcher or umpire. You might suspect he hasn't his mind on his work.

They play him for a right field hitter, and 90 per cent of his hits are into that orchard, but he gets them out of the reach of the fielders.

Williams, a line-drive hitter, thinks only of hitting the ball squarely and lets the home runs fall where they may.

That is why willowy Ted Williams threatens to be the American League's first 400 hitter in 18 years.

Victoria Wins Cricket

Gibbons, Payne Star

Putting on 261 runs for eight wickets, Victoria defeated Vancouver by 191 runs in the inter-city cricket match played yesterday on the rain-soaked Beacon Hill pitch.

The cricket exhibition was the only holiday sports attraction to survive the weather, the inter-city baseball and softball attractions being rained out.

Les Gibbons and the veteran P. C. (Pop) Payne were the heroes in the Victoria victory. The former had a grand day at the wickets to smash out 106 not out while Payne, noted slow bowler, found the soggy pitch to his liking to capture nine wickets for 43 runs.

Sharing honors with Gibbons on the offensive was C. W. Twitte with 71 while George Payne contributed 37.

Only two Vancouver batsmen reached double figures, W. Dickson getting 17 and G. Dickson 13.

Penty Registers Racing Surprise

NEW YORK (AP) — For the second time this year, Penty, a three-year-old with no more importance in the championship picture than Whirlaway's lead pony, stepped into the turf's big league and for the second time he pulled a rabbit out of the hat.

Before a sweltering crowd of 39,968—second largest to see a race in New York this year—the son of Pilate, owned by Mrs. F. Scully and rated along under jockey Nick Wall's expert handling, made every pole a winning one to capture the $10,000-added Aqueduct Handicap.

William Woodward's Fox-brough and Lou Tufano's Market Wise, the top two choices, closed fast to take place and show respectively. Penty finished two lengths ahead. Next to last betting choice in the field of six, he returned his backers $21.90 for $2.

COLUMBUS BULLS DEFEAT BOMBERS

WINNIPEG (CP)—Columbus Bulls, American Professional League champions, taking advantage of Winnipeg Blue Bombers miscues, swept to a 6 to 0 football victory during a thunderstorm here last night to wipe out the sting of the 19 to 12 setback Bombers handed them Tuesday night.

Playing Canadian rules that were revised to permit downfield blocking, the Bulls found the western champions' driving wing-line their greatest menace when in a scoring position but counted two field goals in four tries, both three-point counts in the first and third quarters, following Winnipeg fumbles.

WORLD SERIES TICKETS

NEW YORK — The New York Yankees announced last night they would begin accepting world series ticket reservations today.

Although a meeting called by commissioner K. M. Landis to make plans for the series will be held here tomorrow, the Yankees acknowledged the inevitable by announcing their ticket plans in advance.

Fine Importations in Boys' Wear

From England and Scotland have come many new shipments of boys' apparel. Braemar sweaters in fine wools, tweed jackets, and English flannel trousers are to be found at Wilson's in splendid assortment. Flannel suits, smartly tailored with two pairs of trousers, are ideal for the growing boy, who requires clothing to stand hard wear.

English Gabardine trench coats and tweed topcoats are shown as a necessary part of the winter school wardrobe.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Horsemen who have run their mounts at Vancouver's three tracks this summer prepared today to move on to Victoria for the last two weeks of the British Columbia racing season opening at Willows Park opening Saturday.

Grant Extended To Whip Segura

NEW YORK (AP)—An almost interminable match between a brace of bantamweights, Pancho Segura of Ecuador and Bryan Grant of Atlanta, Ga., supplied nearly all the excitement and pathos for 5,000 fans who sat through the third day of the United States tennis championship ships at Forest Hills yesterday.

After three solid hours of play, Grant finally staggered through to victory by scores of 6-4, 8-6, 4-6, 5-7, 6-2, placing the Atlanta veteran in the third round.

While all this was going on, the domestic seeded players advanced without incident or upset.

Bobby Riggs, an ex-champion who is seeded No. 1, made quick work of Frank Bowden of New York, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2. Champion Don McNeill had some difficulty eliminating Seymour Greenberg of Chicago, 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, co-favorite with Pauline Betz to win the women's crown, defeated Louise Brough of Los Angeles, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1. Miss Betz also dropped a set before subduing Pearl Harland of Santa Monica, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2.

Frank Kovacs, seeded second to Riggs, reached the quarter-finals with an easy 6-2, 6-4, 7-5 win over E. Victor Seixas of Philadelphia.

TENNIS OFFICIAL DIES

NEW YORK (AP)—Benjamin H. Dwight, veteran secretary of the Tennis Umpires' Association, was stricken with a heart attack in the marquee at Forest Hills yesterday and died before he could be removed to the clubhouse for treatment. He was 69.

DODGERS RECALL PLAYERS

BROOKLYN (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday announced the recall of pitchers Ed Head and Al Sherer and infielder Alex Kampouris from Montreal Royals.

Cards Hold Lead in Torrid Baseball Race

Capture Pair As Dodgers Win and Draw

The same subway that goes to Ebbets Field in Brooklyn also runs to Coney Island and there are about as many side shows at one stop as there are at the other.

But the people who have been rushing to the circus at Ebbets Field are beginning to wonder whether the main show may be in the other direction—St. Louis.

The Cardinals captured a doubleheader from Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday with comparative ease, 5 to 3 and 6 to 3, to stretch their current winning streak to seven straight games while Brooklyn Dodgers had a terrible time winning a 15-inning marathon from Boston Braves 6 to 5 and then escaping with a 2 to 2 six-inning tie in the nightcap.

This combination pushed St. Louis half a game in front in the feverish National League pennant race with 83-45 for .648, compared with Brooklyn's 83-46 and .643.

Actually the gain may be only momentary, because the Dodgers' tie was rescheduled for today and if Brooklyn should win with St. Louis idle the margin between the two rivals would be reduced again to .002.

Dolph Camilli carried Dodgers to their eventual victory in the four-hour first game yesterday. He made five hits, tied the score in the eighth inning with his 29th home run, tied again with a double in the 10th and won it with a single in the 15th. Darkness permitted only six innings of play in the afterpiece. Shortstop Pee Wee Reese had another attack of the jitters and let in two runs. The Dodgers barely were able to come from behind before the game was called.

At St. Louis, Ernie White held Pittsburgh to nine hits and allowed no runs after the first inning in the opening game. Afterward Howard Pollet pitched a six-hitter for his third victory. The contest went 7 1/2 innings and he drove in two runs with a single.

GIANTS WIN PAIR

In the other National League action the Giants swept a double bill from the Phillies 7 to 2 and 4 to 3, and Cincinnati split with Chicago Cubs. Reds topped Chicago 2 to 1, but the Cubs came back to take the nightcap 5 to 4 on Phil Cavarretta's triple in the 10th.

New York Yankees divided a doubleheader with the Athletics at Philadelphia and need only three more victories to clinch the American League pennant. A cluster of home runs by George Selkirk, Joe Gordon and Charley Keller boomed the bombers to a 13 to 11 victory in the first game, but they lost the second 5 to 1.

The second-place Boston Red Sox raided Washington Senators 13 to 9 and 10 to 2. Ted Williams hit two home runs in the first game and collected another in the second.

Chicago White Sox whipped Cleveland Indians twice, 7 to 5 and 4 to 3, while Detroit Tigers tore St. Louis Browns apart 9 to 5 and 16 to 8. Rudy York hit three homers in the first game and Barney McCosky and Bruce Campbell each hit one in the second game.

COAST LEAGUE

Sacramento sends its Coast Baseball League Senators into Oakland today, hoping that a change of environment may provide a remedy for the chronic headache which two weeks' association with Seattle and San Diego has produced.

It's a rather desperate plight into which the Senators find themselves fallen as they apply for the rest cure in the quieter atmosphere of the second division. The league awarded them the championship in July and now it wants it back.

Seattle and San Diego, the chief Indian givers, now stand only three games back of Sacramento, with three weeks yet to go. Once the gap was 16 games. Seattle defeated Portland 6 to 3 last night as, for the second successive day, rain broke up a holiday doubleheader in the sixth inning of the first game. Seattle took the curtailed series, five games to two.

San Diego, after winning in five of seven previous tries, capped Sacramento's most disastrous series yesterday by sweeping a double bill, 8 to 4 and 3 to 2.

Ted Jones Wins Speedboat Races

Ted Jones of Seattle, driving his Phantom, captured three of the five inboard races staged yesterday at Shawinigan Lake in the annual speedboat regatta of the Vancouver Island Outboard Association and the Northwest Inboard Racing Association.

The meet staged in a driving rain, saw the cancellation of all the scheduled outboard races, owing to the inability of the pilots to operate their motors.

In the opening five-lap race for the Pendray-Grice Cup, Jones flashed across the line in front of Lloyd Jet, Seattle, at the wheel of Jelling Jet, with Don McRae, Seattle, third, in Miss Take.

The Spencer Cup was captured by McRae with his Miss Take, with W. J. Currell, Vancouver, second with 7-11, and Irving Earle, Victoria, third with H-17. Watson Smith, Victoria, won the Dabiel Cup with his Skippy. Cammie Cameron, Victoria, with Miss Sunbeam, was second, and Irving Earle, driving H-17, third.

Jones completed his clean-up by capturing the Charles Ellis and Eddie Allen Cups with the Phantom. Jet and McRae were second and third, respectively, in each event.

Peak Holiday Travel Crowds Boats, Highways

Everybody appeared to enjoy themselves over the Labor Day holiday despite the fact that the weather man refused to co-operate.

Travel was at the season's peak with a record movement of people and cars by water and land.

Extra steamers had to be pressed into service to handle the thousands of travelers who sought to get off and on the island at the capitol gateway.

One reason for the phenomenal movement, it was indicated in transportation circles, was the rush of American tourists eager to get back to their homes for school opening across the border.

The fact remains that all boats and ferries operating from every port on Vancouver Island got away loaded to capacity with cars—still leaving some behind.

CROWDED DECKS

Leaving more than an hour behind schedule yesterday evening for Seattle, Ss. Princess Marguerite is said to have carried some 1,800 passengers and was chock-a-block with cars on the freight deck. When the embarkation of officers announced the limit had been reached there were still tourists on the dock with their autos, forced to await the departure of the next boat.

At Sidney, where ferries operate to Anacortes and Steveston, yesterday there was a line-up of cars on Beacon Avenue from the Post Office to the ferry landing. There, also, disappointed tourists were left behind.

In desperation, some of the motorists thought of driving over the Island Highway to Nanaimo, there to catch a ferry, but on reaching Moodyville, hoping to cross to Mill Bay, they found another long string of cars down Verdier Avenue.

One tourist summed up experiences this way: "I've been trying to get off this island for three days, and can't."

EXCURSION BUSINESS

Excursion boats had a particularly busy day yesterday, too.

Ss. Princess Adelaide came in at midday from Vancouver with 600 excursionists aboard.

Ss. Princess Alice sailed from this port yesterday morning with a similar number for Vancouver.

Both steamers carried orchestras for dancing, and the holiday-makers didn't mind the rain.

Rain Cuts Down Gas Consumption

Several gas stations ran dry and a number put their own rationing system into effect in Victoria, but the motoring public was not seriously inconvenienced and the wet holiday weather ensured that there will be a gasoline supply for next week-end.

This appears to sum up the gasoline situation in Victoria after the first week of curtailed deliveries to service stations ordered by the Federal Oil Controller, G. R. Cottrell.

Several of the outlying smaller stations which ran out of gas Saturday did not bother to take deliveries when the new month opened yesterday and remained closed until this morning. In other stations where tanks were running low Saturday night operators restricted their sales to three gallons per car. Motorists whose tanks were nearly dry tried shopping from one station to another.

The fact that wet weather curtailed driving yesterday to a minimum means that there should be no danger of stations going dry next week-end, in the opinion of one distributor.

"If there had been a lot of gas used yesterday people would really feel the pinch this week," he said, "because deliveries are being again curtailed." (September deliveries are reduced 25 per cent from July. In the last week of August the decrease was about 20 per cent.)

Some cases were reported of people from up-island who had to go to three or four stations to get enough gas to take them home, but few cars were stranded.

"I find that drivers are now taking gas conservation seriously," said one station operator. "Now that the summer is over they are really working out methods of reducing gas consumption."

MUNICIPAL VOTERS' LIST OPEN TODAY

Registration of city voters for the municipal elections in December opened at the City Hall today and will continue until October 31.

The civic franchise is extended to British subjects of the full age of 21 who have met requirements covering registration.

Property owners whose names were listed on the voters' list last year are automatically carried forward to the 1941 list, as are licensees registered in 1940 and whose 1941 licenses are in good standing.

The names of householders are also placed on the current list automatically provided they were on last year and they have met both the $2 road and $5 poll tax for 1941. Any claiming exemption from either or both taxes are required to re-register.

Registration is entirely separate and distinct from the provincial list. Those wishing to have their names placed on the list must visit the city clerk's office if they are not registered automatically.

Weather Unusual

Those who defied Victoria's weather during August with the protest that it was unusual were proved correct today.

The weatherman admitted that precipitation had totaled 1.46 inches, .88 inch above normal, and sunshine had totaled 264 hours, 42 hours below normal.

Maximum temperature for the month was 85 on August 7. Minimum was 50, on August 28.

While rainfall for the month was up, precipitation for the year was 4.64 inches below normal at 9.17 inches.

Cost of Living Index Up 20%

In two years of war the cost of living in Victoria has risen more than 20 per cent.

The official index compiled by the provincial government stood at 99.10 on August 15, 1939, just two weeks before the conflict started. By August, 1940, it had risen slightly more than 8 per cent to 107.49. In the last year it has taken a decided spurt and on August 15 of this year reached 119.13.

The increase in Victoria is greater than the average for the coast area, which had jumped from 99.27 to 115.83.

"Japan Today," will be the subject of an address by T. A. Hay at 8 tonight in Victoria Gospel Hall, 935 Pandora Avenue. Mr. Hay has recently returned from 10 years' residence in Formosa and Japan.

Oliver Hollingsworth, special representative of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, returned to the city today from Portland, where he has spent the summer giving tourist information regarding Victoria. "It has been our best year in Portland," Mr. Hollingsworth said.

Strict Health Rules Set as Schools Open

Greater Victoria's thousands of students went back to school today and faced rigid health regulations aimed at preventing possible spread of contagion from centres reporting poliomyelitis cases and other severe diseases.

Mild confusion resulted in certain areas as youngsters who had been on excursions, including that to Vancouver yesterday, were required to secure certificates of clearance from city and school health authorities.

Staffs worked efficiently to meet the regulations and to hold from classes only those who had come from towns and areas where infantile paralysis cases had definitely been established.

QUARANTINE RULES

The ruling covering students states all those entering school in Greater Victoria, who have been off Vancouver Island since August 16, require certificates of health. Special regulations cover those from Nanaimo, where a civilian case of poliomyelitis has been reported.

Similarly quarantine periods have been established for certain points in British Columbia and a two-week blanket quarantine has been set up for those arriving from points outside the province, particularly the prairies.

Children who have come from Nanaimo during the last two weeks, are quarantined as far as city and Esquimalt schools are concerned, until September 8.

The same applies to those from Kimberley, while quarantine on those from Prince George expires on September 7.

A full two weeks from today is imposed on those from Vanderhoof, Smithers and the Peace River District.

The quarantine applies both to children living in the Greater Victoria area who have visited the specified locations since August 16, and to those who have come to this district since that date.

Young children starting school for the first time in the opening grade, provided they have not left Victoria since August 16 for other than Vancouver Island points, may attend without certificates.

In Saanich and Oak Bay a general two weeks' quarantine is imposed on those coming in from or returning from prairie points.

FOLLOW OLD PATTERN

The medical angle of this year's school opening complicated to some extent the regular routine of class resumption. Apart from that feature, first-day activity generally followed usual routine. Students were released early following morning registration and thronged to downtown stores for books and other supplies. Stories were exchanged on vacation incidents, and plans were made for sports and other activity during the coming term by the older students.

Youngsters, starting for the first time, embarked on their great adventure with a sympathetic welcome from primary teachers.

Make your house a Home

WHO can measure the joy a piano brings to the home? For every dollar of its cost a piano returns hundreds of hours of happiness! And it is a happiness that can be universally shared. Little children begin their first lessons. Friends enjoy their visits more . . . life is made more companionable, merrier and more deeply satisfying because of the piano. In the selection of a piano we offer a service that is not to be duplicated elsewhere.

It is because Fletcher Bros. provides complete music store service. The world's greatest piano, the Steinway, is here. Canada's most famous pianos, the Heintzman, Nordheimer and Lesage, are shown in the newest and smartest designs. Other instruments are conditioned by expert piano craftsmen in our own workshop and are available at a fraction of their original cost, yet many of them cannot be distinguished from new.

KILDARE STORY AT DOMINION

Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore and Lorraine Day are again teamed together in the latest adventure of Dr. Kildare, "The People vs. Dr. Kildare," now showing at the Dominion Theatre. It is a hectic climax to his career, and concerns a girl with million-dollar legs. Excellent court action is portrayed by all the witnesses.

CAPITOL THEATRE
Combining the versatile talents of Clark Gable and Rosalind Russell as co-stars, M-G-M's "They Met in Bombay," currently at the Capitol Theatre, is a romantic melodrama graphically keyed into international complications in the Orient.

With this headlined news front setting with intrigue and violence as their dramatic background, Gable and Miss Russell, as a pair of intrepid adventurers, are given wide latitude in bringing their unusual talents to the screen.

Gable's role is cut smartly to the dictates of his outstanding work as a two-fisted man of action.

ATLAS—Fred MacMurray in "One Night in Lisbon."

CADET—"Come Live With Me," starring James Stewart and Hedy Lamarr.

CAPITOL—Clark Gable and Rosalind Russell in "They Met in Bombay."

DOMINION—Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore and Lorraine Day in "The People vs. Dr. Kildare."

OAK BAY—Jane Frazee in "San Antonio Rose."

PLAZA—"The Middle Watch," starring Ian Hay.

RIO—Gracie Fields in "Queen of Hearts."

YORK—"Stanley and Livingstone," starring Spencer Tracy.

PLAZA THEATRE
"The Middle Watch," most successful comedy ever written with a service background, is at the Plaza Theatre today. Ian Hay and Stephen King Hall's sure touch extracts a pile of fun from some of His Majesty's ships on an eastern station in peacetime.

Some of the loudest laughs come from Reginald Purdell and Leslie Fuller as corporal and Marine sentry who are called on to display super-tact in the execution of their duties while the fun is going on.

YORK THEATRE
The adventure that thrilled the world is thrillingly retold on the screen of the York Theatre today in Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Stanley and Livingstone," the 20th Century-Fox film with Spencer Tracy, twice winner of the Academy Award, turning in another great performance as the heroic reporter who risked his life to "find Livingstone!" In the black heart of unknown Africa, Nancy Kelly and Richard Greene are costarred with Tracy at the head of a magnificent cast.

OAK BAY THEATRE
Styled completely in the modern mood, Universal's tune-filled "San Antonio Rose" heads the bill at the Oak Bay Theatre.

The offering features the Merry Macs, noted recording and radio musical organization. Headlining the cast are: Jane Frazee, Robert Paige, Lon Chaney Jr., Eve Arden and Shemp Howard.

ATLAS THEATRE
Billy Gilbert, sneezing oversized comedian, plays the part of a Mr. Popopopolous, proprietor of a Greek restaurant in "One Night in Lisbon," current attraction at the Atlas Theatre. Popopopolous positively refused to serve Italian spaghetti to the stars of the film, Fred MacMurray and beautiful Madeleine Carroll.

RIO THEATRE
Gracie Fields returns to town in "Queen of Hearts," now showing at the Rio Theatre. John Loder also plays a leading role.

The second feature is "Angels With Broken Wings," starring Blinnie Barnes.

CADET THEATRE
"Come Live With Me," co-starring James Stewart and Hedy Lamarr, is showing at the Cadet Theatre today.

Laval Improving
VICHY (AP)—Pierre Laval's physicians issued a bulletin today saying the former vice-premier, who was gravely wounded by an assassin's bullet at Versailles last week, was showing "progressive improvement." The condition of Marcel Deat, Laval's newspaper friend, apparently was so much improved his physicians did not bother to issue a bulletin.

Cowichan Regatta

Ishkoodah Winner In Snipe Class

Sailing the snipe Ishkoodah, Alfie Evans was the lone Victoria first winner in the Labor Day week-end international yachting regatta held at Cowichan Bay.

Evans was awarded the snipe class race when Dave Ramsay, in the Redskin, who finished first, was disqualified for crossing the finishing line to port, contrary to the course rules.

All boats were expected to round all marks to port and sail straight across the finishing line. A number of yachts, including the Seattle sloop Circe in the A class race, made the mistake of crossing the finish line to port and were consequently disqualified.

Pelican, piloted by Jack Moran, finished second in the snipe class. Contesting a close race with the Wind of Vancouver, Jack Gilbert, sailing the Aquila, came in second in the star class.

Light wind and rain precluded any feature racing and the entries were not as large as last year. There was a good turnout of Victoria and Vancouver boats, more particularly in the smaller classes.

The judges were Ben B. Temple of the Royal Victoria

Yacht Club and H. Van Dyke of the Maple Bay Yacht Club. Vancouver yachts won the races for A and C class cruisers as well as the star class.

Winners in the international competition follow: Snipe class: Ishkoodah, Alfie Evans, Victoria; Pelican, Jack Moran, Victoria; Star class: Winda, A. Parsons, Vancouver; Aquila, Jack Gilbert, Victoria.

A class cruisers: Cressett, J. Urney, Vancouver; Elsaye A. McKenzie, Victoria; C class cruisers: Benora, A. Herlinch, Vancouver; Tonassa, J. Noiblon, Vancouver. Power boats: Elvane, Donald Butt, Maple Bay; Wanderer II, C. C. Bromilow, Maple Bay.

Satko's Ark Is Wrecked

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—The Ark of Junneau, which survived a number of legal as well as natural storms and traveled from Tacoma to Juneau under the guidance of Paul Satko, his wife and eight children a year ago, drifted on to rocks near here yesterday and a large hole was punctured in the stern.

The Satko family, living in the boat while a cabin is made on their ground five miles inland, were reported taken off the ark safely but their personal effects were much water-soaked.

Satko and his oldest son were deer hunting at the time of the accident, caused by a broken tow line which allowed the boat to drift on to the rocks, where it was left stern up with the bow under water.

The Ark of Junneau, called the Ark of Tacoma when Satko and family were living in the Puget Sound city while preparing the queer-looking boat for the voyage to Alaska, has been moored at Eagle River landing, about 26 miles from Juneau, for the past several months.

tionary Davis wing. Negotiations are nearing completion for construction of the high-speed, efficient B-24 in Canada at the Fort William plant of the Canadian Car and Foundry, now turning out all-Canadian Hurricanes.

Terrific Hitting Power

North Carolina's Guns Vomit Reeling Blast

By JOHN A. MOROSO III
ABOARD THE U.S.S. NORTH CAROLINA AT SEA (Delayed AP)—Standing on the wind-swept fore-castle of this mighty battleship tonight I saw and heard Uncle Sam's sailors fire the greatest salvo from one ship in naval history—a collecting blast that sent more than 20,000 pounds of metal from the flame-belching muzzles of 19 glistening grey guns.

Marking a new era in the hitting power of fighting ships, this terrific salvo sent me reeling blindly across the slippery, spray-drenched deck while I clutched my cotton-padded ears and thought of hell and heaven.

The majestic bow of the 35,000-ton North Carolina—one of the navy's two newest and largest battleships—quivered sharply to port and starboard, the ship gave a slight list and settled quickly as the shells screamed into the night air.

Crew members and guests sent up a mighty cheer when they learned that the North Carolina had passed her tests. No one had known how she would react because never has such a powerful salvo been fired from a single vessel.

It was touched off at 8.30 p.m. when Capt. Olaf M. Hustvedt climbed onto the foretop high above the main deck and took his place beside the trigger.

Informed that his crew was at battle stations, Capt. Hustvedt, 55, stepped forward and gently squeezed the trigger that made naval history.

A huge mass of red, blue, green and purple burst from the nine 16-inch guns trained over the portside. Short, sharp flames darted from the 10 5-inch dual purpose guns and the crescendo of thunder seemed to carry beyond the horizon as the shells whistled away.

We had been conditioning our guns and our bodies for three days with single, double and triple shots and we thought our numb ear drums and powder-choked eyes had experienced the worst.

The terrible blast, we learned later, was much worse than any that would be fired from the $70,000,000 vessel is she were to engage in battle. Trial tests include every possible type of fire to prove the strength of structure and guns.

Matter-of-fact Lieut. Comdr. Thomas B. Hill, Cripple Creek, Colo., the gunnery officer, gave this as his reaction:

"The news here is that we got them all fired without hurting anyone."

This salvo cost $23,710. Its effect on some of the green sailors was magnificent. In a few moments raw country boys from nearly every state in the Union became sailors, strutting and swaggering along the main deck and bragging of the feats of their individual turrets and batteries.

DIED IN EFFORT TO SAVE WOMEN

OTTAWA (CP)—Lieut. Charles Allan Keefe of the Royal Canadian Navy lost his life last Tuesday night "while trying to save women passengers from a Norwegian ship," his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Keefe of suburban Rockcliffe were advised by the British Admiralty.

He was educated in Ottawa and had been with the Arctic division of the Hudson's Bay Company for six years when the war broke out. For a time he was stationed at Fort Wrigley, N.W.T.

Papers in Lead

MONTREAL (CP)—Given an early impetus by strength in papers, trading on the stock exchange Tuesday spread out to take in industrials, metals and carriers mostly at better than pre-holiday prices.

Price Brothers and St. Lawrence Corporation issues were all on the upgrade in newspapers. Ahead in industrials were Massey-Harris, United Steel, Canadian Car, Alcohol A, Dominion Bridge, Dosco B, General Steel Wares, Hamilton Bridge and Bronze preferred.

In carriers, both Canadian Steamship issues firmed following a statement by the company's president, W. H. Coverdale, that profits for seven months of 1941 showed $1,000,000 increase over the same period in 1940.

Consolidated Smelters and International Nickel were on the upgrade in metals.

English Artist Describes Rescue of R.A.F. Pilot

The postman has brought me a long letter from my cousin, Frank C. Pape, an English artist. In it he reviews some of the war adventures he has gone through in Tunbridge Wells, a town south of London.

"One day," he writes, "a Pole flying as a pilot in the R.A.F. came floating down with a parachute over the grounds of the tennis club where I play. One of our planes kept circling around him, guarding him from attack by Nazis until it seemed plain that he would land safely."

The R.A.F. pilot was tangled in a tree

"Scores of persons rushed to the scene in cars and on motorcycles. Home guards were already on the spot to receive him. He narrowly missed a couple of chimneys and a glass-roofed conservatory belonging to some people we know."

"Crossing the road, he floated above a tennis court. The ropes of his parachute caught in a tall tree. Being suspended more or less in mid-air, he was not able to get free from the tangled mass of cords."

"A builder nearby got a couple of long ladders and up went two Home Guards and cut him down. The airman came down the ladder smiling, but holding his arm. They took him next door, where his wounded arm was dressed by a nurse who had rushed to the spot (with a cup of tea). Amid much cheering, he was driven away in an automobile to the close-by hospital."

"Later a Nazi airman drifted low over our garden, just clearing the tree tops. There was a stiff breeze and he swung like a pendulum. He came down on the common. So did an enemy bomber, with a big crash."

"On another day, a bomb fell near the hospital, but missed it. The house next to the hotel in which you once stayed, was set on fire, together with shops in the town. The Opera House was hit and when we went to a film a few days afterward we looked up at the gaping hole in the roof. A bicycle shop nearby was set on fire, and we passed the remnants of stock piled up on the pavement."

HOROSCOPE

SEPTEMBER 3

Good and evil appear balanced in the forecast for today. Persons may be confused by conflicting aspects, but as the day progresses it may become more easy to make decisions. Financial matters are favored, and it is a good time for business deals. Property transactions should be mutually beneficial.

Astrologers predict new activity in North Africa. There may be news of a British victory in this area.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of an eventful year. Children born on this day may be carefree and extravagant.

Clothing Shipped Totals 18 Tons

Eighteen tons of clothing have been sent to Britain from Victoria and two tons await shipment, members of the Overseas League were told yesterday at a meeting in the Empress Hotel. The clothing is valued at more than $2,000 a ton.

A letter was read from an official overseas, stating: "No supplies arriving today are more eagerly looked for or more deeply appreciated. Everything is just grand."

The league extends its thanks to all who have contributed such excellent clothing. Another shipment will be dispatched shortly. The chairman reported $233 had been contributed by members to the war services fund of the league since the last meeting.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX—I loved a girl and she loved me, but we delayed getting married until we finished our schooling. Eventually we quarreled and she married someone else. I was grief-stricken and sought relief by dating another girl who pitied and consoled me and it ended up by her marrying me. After about a year I find that I just can't love her, although I admire her character more than ever. I have gone away and left her, but I must make up my mind whether to go back and try to live with her or force her to let me go. Is it possible that I could finally learn to love her? About what are the chances?

Answer—I think husbands and wives are more apt to fall out of love than they are in love, and that is why it is desirable to start out in marriage with a lot of romance and sentiment.

You see there is bound to be a great deal of disillusion when husbands and wives come down to earth after their flight among the pink clouds of courtship. When they see each other as they really are, as just plain, ordinary human beings with peculiarities and faults sticking out all over them, many a man has wondered why in the world he picked out this woman for a wife, and many a woman has wondered what made her do it.

Also, the adjustment of two different personalities is never accomplished without friction that is more likely to separate a couple than to bring them together. But we can control our emotions to a great extent, and we can learn to like those with whom we have to live, even if they do not measure up to all of our desires nor hit our fancies.

In the Desert

British Brave, Daring, Had Only Wooden Tanks

By EDWARD KENNEDY

WITH THE ARMY OF THE NILE (AP)—I have been with the British and Allied Middle East forces for a year now—with them in victory in the western desert, in defeat in Greece, in victory again in Syria.

I have seen much valor, much daring.

Especially in the early days, the story was always the same—outnumbered and short of equipment, sometimes slightly muddled, but always brave and confident.

One British detachment in the desert marched out with wooden tanks and wooden cannon, intending only to distract enemy fire while the real thrust was made elsewhere. But the ruse worked so well that several thousand Italians surrendered.

The army of the Nile up to the present has performed successfully its one big task—holding this vital gateway between east and west.

BEST IN WORLD

Still, it perhaps has been greater in defeat than in victory. The British army probably is the best retreating army in the world—and that's no joke.

Almost any army can be good when it's going ahead, but it takes the kind of courage this army has to withdraw as well as it did from the death trap that was Greece in the face of an enemy force several times as powerful.

I doubt whether press correspondents anywhere else have been permitted to see as much front-line action at close range as those with this Army of the Nile.

Last winter we swept across the desert with the British and Australian force which smashed the Italians in Egypt and then took all Cyrenaica.

We went through fire with the first troops which entered Bardia, Tobruk, Derna and Bengasi.

Later, while most of us were in Greece, the desert campaign largely was undone when the Germans arrived in Libya and retook everything up to the Egyptian frontier except Tobruk. But the original drive removed the threat of imminent invasion of the Nile valley, destroyed Gen. Graziani's army of 200,000 men and did much to discredit Italy as a fighting power.

INVASION

When we accompanied the expedition to Greece, we barely had reached the front line region when the withdrawal began. Then came the evacuation from Greece with the army, we spent some time in Crete but left before the parachute invasion.

In Syria we switched from sector to sector in small parties, getting together for the triumphal entries into Damascus and Beirut.

One of our number met death—Ralph Barnes of the New York Herald Tribune, who was killed in an airplane crash. Two other correspondents were wounded slightly in Cyrenaica. Two more were captured in Syria but later released.

The western desert is not a bad place, except during sandstorms. You get attached to it after a while. Its daytime heat is not unbearable and the nights are cool.

Its sunsets are the most beautiful I have ever seen. And there's good swimming along the coast.

For one period I lived with a group of Australian correspondents in a cave outside Tobruk. Its entrance was a little hole on the desert floor just big enough for a man to slip down.

Inside we had plenty of room for campbeds, tables and benches. The walls had been plastered in some ancient day, and bore inscriptions in an alphabet we never had seen.

VIOLENT DEATHS

CHICAGO (AP)—Six hundred and fourteen persons were killed in accidents or by other violence over the holiday week-end in the United States, 416 of them in highway traffic, heavy with homebound vacationists and tourists on their final outing of the summer.

An Associated Press survey showed today 73 drowned and 125 died in shootings, stabbings, falls, fires, airplane accidents and by other violent means.

The traffic toll compared with a prediction by the National Safety Council that 600 persons, or 180 more than on a normal summer week-end, would be killed in traffic between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Monday. The council's forecast, however, included those injured in holiday crashes who might die later.

Deaths from all violent causes over the Labor Day week-end a year ago totalled 514 as against 614 this year.

3 New Cases

EDMONTON (CP)—Three new cases of poliomyelitis in Alberta, raising the provincial total to 98 since the outbreak began several weeks ago, were reported today by provincial health authorities. Also reported in Calgary was the death Monday of a man of 32 from poliomyelitis, a form of polio affecting the brain. The victim, whose attack was reported previously, was Carl W. Gooler of Oshawa. It was Alberta's second polio death this year.

Ship Losses Down

LONDON (CP)—An authoritative source disclosed today there has been "a very great improvement" in British losses from U-boat action in the Battle of the Atlantic. He said the sowing of mines now may be described as an inconvenience rather than a danger, despite this war's two developments, the magnetic mine and the mine-laying aircraft.

'Open Mind' On War Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP)—New Zealand has an "open mind" on the question of an imperial war cabinet, Hon. Peter Fraser, Prime Minister of that Antipodean dominion, said at a press conference soon after his arrival in Ottawa today.

"I really do not want to comment on this question at all," Mr. Fraser said, "but since I have been quoted on it I want to make my position clear."

"The present method of visits by prime ministers to London at separate times has obvious disadvantages."

"And obviously it would be impossible for prime ministers to be permanent members of a Commonwealth war cabinet meeting continuously in London, because they could not be away from their respective dominions for long periods."

"But I am certain the New Zealand government is ready to consider with an open mind any proposals for closer contact as a means of facilitating the war effort."

"I feel I can go back to New Zealand confident the people of the United States would not stand complacently by if the small democracies of the Pacific were attacked by an aggressor nation," Mr. Fraser said.

"Have you any definite undertaking to that effect?" he was asked.

"I would rather not answer that question," the Prime Minister replied.

With a population of about 1,800,000, New Zealand has an army of trained men and women, including those overseas and those available for home defence, of about 220,000, Mr. Fraser said.

New Zealand suffered about 2,500 casualties in the Greek campaign, and about 2,800 in Crete, and there is great uncertainty as to how many prisoners and how many dead, Mr. Fraser said.

"These losses strengthened the determination of the New Zealand people to see the thing through," the Prime Minister said.

Asked to comment on New Zealand's attitude toward Russia, Mr. Fraser said, "my attitude at the moment is one of gratitude for the fight they are putting up."

Cardinal Says Mass For Canada Troops

ALDERSHOT (CP)—In a war-time setting, Arthur, Cardinal Hinsley, Archbishop of Westminster, Sunday officiated at two masses for the Roman Catholic troops of Canada, and told them defence against the forces which inflict "crushing wrongs" on peaceful peoples is "just and necessary."

The Cardinal addressed the French-speaking Canadian troops at the second mass, at which Lieut.-Col. M. C. O'Neill, Edmonton, senior Catholic chaplain to the Canadian forces overseas, assisted.

Lieut. P. Strickland, Saskatoon, was among the guard for the first mass.

Later Cardinal Hinsley visited the club run for the benefit of soldiers by the Catholic Women's League, and then lunched at headquarters mess of a Quebec unit with officers and a small number of guests, including Major-Gen. P. J. Montague of Winnipeg, chief at Canadian general headquarters in London.

NOW PRISONER

CALGARY (CP)—Previously reported missing and believed killed in action, Sergt.-Observer Francis John Day, 26, is safe and probably a prisoner of war in Germany, according to a cable received Sunday by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Day of Calgary.

2 Years of War

By JOHN H. MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Adolf Hitler in a New Year's Eve speech promised the German people "the greatest victory in our history" in 1941.

At the time nearly everyone thought he referred to an early invasion of Britain. But since June 22, when he turned against his pact partner, Russia, many have believed he had the destruction of the Soviets in mind all the time.

Now that the war is two years old, it seems an appropriate time to review the situation Hitler looked upon as he spoke, and to see how his campaign has progressed.

As Hitler uttered those words, he alone of the "four men of Munich" stood supreme.

His armies had smashed Poland, France, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, Norway and Denmark. His airmen were taking a fearful toll of lives and property in the British Isles, his submarines and long-range bombers gnawing the vitals of British Atlantic shipping.

MUSSOLINI BOASTS

Neville Chamberlain had died in November of 1940 amid the wreckage of his appeasement plans; Edouard Daladier, Paul Reynaud and other French officials were imprisoned on "war guilt" charges by a Vichy regime collaborating with Germany; Mussolini was trumpeting he would "break Greece's back" after the Greeks had not only stalled a Fascist invasion but hurled the Fascists back into Albania.

British armies were smashing Italy's invasion forces in Libya, and Mussolini had to ask the aid of German planes in Albania against the numerically inferior, but tough, Greeks.

Hungary, Rumania and Slovakia had joined the Axis camp. Japan had signed a full military alliance with Germany and Italy designed to block any United States intervention in the war.

Britain, after the disastrous defeat in Flanders, had proclaimed she would fight in every field and street to defend her island.

A Free French leader, Gen. Charles de Gaulle, had arisen, with thousands joining his banner.

President Roosevelt in September of 1940 had traded 50 old destroyers to Britain in exchange for bases screening the eastern American coast from Newfoundland to South America. He also had pledged all possible aid to Britain in supplies, and the American people had elected this outspoken foe of Nazism as their first third-term President.

TOO LATE?

Germans dismissed as "too late" American plans to aid Britain. On January 30 Hitler declared that any ships from Britain bearing aid to Britain would be torpedoed.

German agents had been active throughout the winter in the Balkans. King Carol of Rumania abdicated in favor of his son, Michael, and fled the country, and on February 10 Britain broke off relations because of the entry of German troops into that kingdom.

A few days later German staff officers in civilian clothes were seen in Sofia, Bulgarian capital, and a cooling in German-Russian relations became almost immediately apparent.

Turks and Greeks hastened their frontier fortifications, Soviet Russia voiced her disapproval to Bulgaria—of Nazi occupation. On March 5 Britain broke with Bulgaria.

Hitler the next day told an uneasy Turkey that Germany wished to protect the "interest and well-being" of that state, which has a mutual assistance pact, never put into force, with Britain.

JUGOSLAVIA

Nazi diplomats also were working on Yugoslavia, and the worried Yugoslavs did not know what to do. Germany and Italy ringed them on all sides save the Greek frontier to the south.

President Roosevelt on March 11 signed the lend-lease bill promising billions of dollars' worth of equipment. A few days later he called on the American people for all-out aid to Britain, Greece, China and nations resisting aggression.

Russia on March 24 gave Turkey a pledge of helpful neutrality should the Turks be attacked by Germany.

On March 25 the Yugoslav leaders joined the Axis. The Germans hailed the action as "an answer to Churchill and Roosevelt."

The Germans shouted too early. On March 27 a Serbian military coup d'etat turned out the Axis-committed government and enthroned the boy King Peter, a 17-year-old. Serbs paraded in the streets displaying British and American flags, while the new government strove to soothe the Axis.

The German hammer fell at 5:30 a.m. on April 6, not only on Jugoslavia but on Greece, where British troops had landed several weeks before.

It was all over in less than a month. The Yugoslav oxen-drawn army, cut to pieces, capitulated. Guerrillas, however, still are fighting the conquerors.

TO THE AEGEAN

In three days German tanks smashed through Grecian Thrace to the Aegean Sea.

All the British army was evacuated to the Greek Island of Crete and Egypt. A surprise German stroke in Libya hurled the Britons back to the Egyptian frontier save for a small garrison still holding out at Tobruk.

Italy received parts of Yugoslavia and Greece as her share of the Axis loot; Croatia was set up as a separate kingdom with the Italian Duke of Spoleto as king.

The Nazis also struck suddenly May 20 at Crete with a parachute invasion that forced the Britons from that island 10 days later.

In Iraq, pro-Axis Rashid Ali Al Gailani seized power. Britain tried diplomacy, then sent an army into the country and quickly restored the ousted pro-British government.

German planes had landed in Syria en route to Iraq to aid in the brief fight against the British forces. British authorities also accused Vichy of allowing an infiltration of German tourists, a familiar Nazi Trojan Horse pattern.

Then the British and Free French troops invaded Syria. They were bringing that campaign to a conclusion when Germany—strangely aloof—suddenly attacked Russia.

RUSSIAN ALLIES

Britain quickly allied herself with Russia. The United States pledged aid to the Soviets.

Turkey, which had signed a 10-year friendship treaty with Germany four days before, remained neutral.

Rumania, Hungary, Italy, Slovakia and Finland allied themselves with Germany. The Nazis pictured themselves as champions of religious freedom crusading against a Godless Russia.

Japan found herself in an embarrassing position. She was allied to the Axis, and Matsuoka on his return from Berlin had stopped in Moscow April 13 to sign a five-year neutrality pact with the arch enemy, Russia. A few weeks later the Japanese cabinet of Premier Konoye resigned, then reformed with Matsuoka left out.

German hopes of a quick Russian victory soon were dashed. Fatalistic Red Army men have died by the thousands in resist-

Russians May Ferry Bombers

NOME, Alaska (AP)—Alaskans in this far northern settlement speculated today on the possibility that the group of 47 uncommunicative Russians who arrived here Sunday night in two flying boats would ferry American-built warplanes back to their embattled homeland.

The takeoff of the two big ships, en route to Washington, D.C., was expected today, weather permitting, despite official silence on that subject and all other aspects of the mystery flight over "the roof of the world."

Russian Consul Fedotoff arrived from Washington, via Fairbanks, late yesterday and went into conference with General ing, just as their fathers did in the first Great War.

Now, as the war enters its third year, Russian resistance to Germany is expected to extend into the winter, especially since British and Russian troops have invaded Iran to open communication lines between the Persian Gulf and the Russian Caucasus.

If that occurs, the Russians say Hitler not only will fail in his New Year's eve promise, but eventually will be beaten, as Napoleon was, on the vast Russian plains.

Mikhail Gromov, commander of the expedition and one of the Soviets' outstanding airmen.

The speculation of Alaskans over the possibility of the men ferrying airplanes back to Russia was based on the fact that most of them appeared to be aviators.

The flying boats are expected to fly south via Sitka and Seattle to San Francisco. A report from Anchorage indicated there might also be a stop at Kodiak, where a large U.S. naval air base is being constructed.

(In Washington, D.C., some quarters were reported as indicating that the mission might be largely technicians, coming to look over the latest American planes and to discuss technical problems. There was official silence in the capital, both in Russian and governmental offices, as to the purpose of the mission. Some Washington quarters indicated they knew of the flight at about the time the airmen took off from Moscow five days ago.)

(The presence of the flying mission here coincided with the arrival of two Russian army officers and three embassy attaches in San Diego. They were believed to be on a buying mission to the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation, which built the two PBV type ships which landed in Nome.)

(Consolidated officials said the seaplanes were built for Russia under a $1,000,000 contract in 1937 with the approval of the U.S. navy. Three PBV ships were included in the contract.)

Women in this town are asking:

"Why aren't all fruits and vegetables —at all food stores—priced by the pound —rather than by the piece, the bunch or dozen?"

NOT so many years ago a sales-girl measured a yard of dress goods by the distance from her nose to her forefinger. If she had a long arm you got more material—if her arm was shorter you got less.

Bulk foods were measured by the handful or the double handful. A common way of figuring weight was the amount a woman could hold at arm's length.

Once a foot was literally the length of a man's foot. But whose foot?

Until recently a dozen eggs means simply 12 eggs. But today the laws specify the weight of these 12 eggs—for example the law says "large" eggs are: "Eggs uniform in size weighing not less than 2 ounces each and averaging not less than 24 ounces a dozen."

The law states how much large eggs must weigh because eggs aren't all alike in size.

Now take vegetables and fruits.

Now two heads of lettuce are exactly alike. No two carrots. No two watermelons. One orange always differs from its mate. And so does every single thing Nature grows.

So the question is: Why aren't all fruits and vegetables priced by the pound rather than by the piece, the bunch or the dozen.

Recently Safeway announced that every Safeway store here was making this change. Every Safeway store in this area now sells lettuce, carrots, beets, celery—every kind of fruit and vegetables carried—by the pound.

It means things like this to you:

No more wasteful leftover vegetables in your kitchen. If you need the number of beets or carrots usually found in a bunch and a half, you can buy just that number. You don't any longer need to buy two bunches.

No more worry about picking out the biggest, most solid head of lettuce or stock of celery. Now you can choose the tender delicious size you want, and pay only for exactly what you get by weight.

No more gambling about whether one grapefruit is larger or more juicy than another. The heavier ones usually have more juice and less rind or pulp. When you buy by weight you get what you want.

No more worrying whether bunches may be bigger at one store than another, or lettuce heads larger at one place than elsewhere. A pound is the same amount everywhere. You can't be fooled.

Well, we can't tell you in this ad, all that women have told us about how they like Safeway's new way of selling fruits and vegetables.

So we just invite you to come in and try it out. All the many advantages of pricing by weight are yours at your Safeway produce department on every item you buy.

Your Safeway Grocer

Many prominent women tell us they would like every store in town to price all fruits and vegetables by weight. Then you could get just the amount you want, just the sizes you like, and full value for your money every time. Wherever you trade, why don't you ask your store man about it?

A "PASSING-OUT" PARADE of a company of Sandhurst cadets at the famous army college in England was witnessed by Her Majesty the Queen and the Princesses. Until the outbreak of war it was customary to present the most efficient cadet with a sword, but this custom has been abandoned. At Her Majesty's request a miniature sword in silver was presented to the best cadet. The Queen and the two Princesses are pictured listening while the commandant, Brigadier Brunner-Randal, addresses the parade.
